Senate Group Orders Probe On Cash Spent For Candidates

'Excessive Sums of Money' Reported In Some Instances

NONE IS NAMED

Chairman to Appoint In- vestigators to Study Complaints

Washington—(P)—The senate campaign investigating committee today ordered an investigation of complaints that "excessive sums of money" were being spent in behalf of some aspirants for the presidency.

Senator Gillette (D-Iowa), committee chairman, said that the complaints had been received "from apparently reliable sources."

He declined to name the candidates or the party involved but said that thus far charges affected only one party.

The committee approved a motion instructing Gillette to assign investigators to study the complaints, the source of which was not disclosed.

"I have not yet acted," Gillette told reporters, "but I will act."

Asks for Data

Gillette said he had received reports that the National Association of Manufacturers was circulating its membership for funds in connection with congressional races. He has requested his informants, he added, to send him copies of any letters sent out by the N. A. M., in any such campaign.

The committee also decided today, the chairman said, to send investigators into Missouri at once to study reports "of the improper use of official influence and the promise or withholding of state patronage not only in the selection of delegates to a national convention but in the state senatorial campaign."

Gillette said the group would consider complaints that large sums of money had been spent in several states. He added that some charges had been received from Nebraska, but because they contained such inadequate information he had asked for "specifications and particulars."

Want List to Run

Patronage charges already have resulted in committee investigations being sent to Kansas.

Capital politicians, meanwhile, were interested in the announcement of Governor Clyde R. Hoey of North Carolina that he favored Secretary of State Hull for President.

Hoey said at Raleigh, N. C., he had "every reason to believe" that President Roosevelt would support Hull, and expressed hope that North Carolina's 26 votes in the Democratic convention would go to the cabinet member.

Postmaster General Farley, an avowed candidate for Democratic honors, was given a testimonial dinner in New York last night at which he declared that leaders of industry, transportation, finance, agriculture and labor should "submerge their selfishness."

Editorial Writer Is Fined $25; Refused To Answer Questions

Topeka, Kans.—(P)—E. B. Chapman, Topeka State Journal editorial writer, was fined $25 for contempt of court today, being accused of failure to "answer questions considered important" about bootlegging in the Kansas state capital.

Imposition of the fine by Police Judge Peter F. Caldwell was a surprise development. Yesterday City Attorney Mark Bennett had said Chapman no longer was in contempt because he "partially answered our questions."

Chapman's citation grew out of an editorial he wrote stating that liquor sales and gambling were continuing in Topeka despite arrests in an alleged "vice payoff ring." He said the vital information is in authoritative hands and that he could not disclose his sources without breaking confidences.

Favor Tenure Repeal By Over 31,000 Votes

Madison—(P)—Official returns awaiting approval of the canvassing board showed today the electors favored repeal of the state teacher tenure act by more than 31,000 votes.

The vote in a statewide referendum April 2 was 403,782 for repeal and 372,524 against.

Burglary Suspect Is Facing Hearing At Chippewa Falls

Madison—(P)—Detective Captain John R. Arnold said today Robert Russell, 24, of Eau Claire, captured here Wednesday after a widespread search, had been turned over to authorities of Chippewa Falls where he is wanted on burglary charges.

A 17-year-old Eau Claire girl, arrested with Russell, was released to officials of Kewaunee on automobile theft charges.

Police found Russell at a Madison home where he and his companion had gone to visit a housemaid. They had a tip from Sheriff Preston McEvoy, of Juneau county, to be on the lookout for a couple who had wrecked an automobile stolen at Kewaunee Sunday.

Russell had been sought by officials of several counties on charges of burglary, armed assault and car theft.

Man Fatally Hurt as Auto Hits Culvert

9 Other Persons In- jured in Appleton Area Accidents

Manrow Schubring, 77, Forest Junction, was fatally injured and three other persons were hurt when the car in which they were riding struck a culvert on Highway 57 just west of Greenleaf about 4:30 yesterday afternoon. Schubring died at Bellin Memorial hospital, Green Bay, at 9:55 this morning of internal injuries. Six others were injured in traffic accidents in this area yesterday and today.

The car was driven by Louis F. Runge, route 2, Hilbert, who was traveling west at the time of the accident. Runge escaped injury but his wife suffered a fractured pelvis. A daughter, Hildegard, was cut and bruised about the head. Mrs. Schubring was shaken up.

Schubring was born at Genesee Depot and moved to the town of Brill, Calumet county, in 1867 where he farmed until his retirement in 1918. He was a member of the school district board in the town for 12 years, and for 16 years Sunday school superintendent at the Zion Evangelical church, Forest Junction. He was a member of the Forest Junction fire department.

Survivors besides the widow are three daughters, Mrs. Harry Schell, Mrs. Louis Runge, route 2, Hilbert; Mrs. Leonard Seybold, Forest Junction; a brother, August Schubring, Forest Junction; and three sisters, Mrs. Henry Loefer, Mrs. Amelia Loefer and Mrs. Edward Broehm, Forest Junction.

Four persons were injured when the car in which they were riding went off Highway 41 at the Meade turn on page 12 col 4

Reynaud Is Given Confidence Vote

Gets Unanimous Support After Secret Debate On Policies

Paris—(P)—The chamber of deputies tonight gave the government of Premier Paul Reynaud a unanimous vote of confidence.

The vote, 504 to 0, came in a public session immediately after a secret debate on general government policies and the conduct of the war.

It was the second vote of confidence for Reynaud's cabinet, which took office March 21. It contrasted sharply with the first vote, on March 22, in which there was only a one-vote majority, though that later was increased to 17 votes by changes of stand by a number of deputies.

The chamber also adopted unanimously a motion of homage to the French armies and the Norwegian people.

Reynaud entered the chamber's one-day secret debate with his hand strengthened by an enthusiastic reception accorded his war policies by the senate yesterday.

House Committee Clears Way For Early Consideration of Proposed Wagner Act Changes

Washington—(P)—The house rules committee unexpectedly cleared the way today for the house to take up soon legislation to amend the Wagner act.

Procedure which the committee approved, 9 to 1, would permit the house to consider both the set of four amendments approved by the house labor committee and the more sweeping changes put forward by the Smith committee—the independent house group headed by Representative Smith (D-Va.) which investigated the labor board recently.

Rules committee said this procedure would permit "wide open" debate on the entire question of Wagner act changes.

The labor committee's amendments would increase the labor board from three to five members, protect craft unions, permit employers to petition the labor board

Heil Urged to Halt Probe of Conservation Board

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—The statehouse speculated today on the exact status of the much-discussed investigation of the state conservation department by the governor's research bureau, as evidence gathered that the investigation is being bitterly opposed by the Wisconsin conservation congress and sportsmen's groups all over the state.

Resolutions from hunters and fishermen's clubs have been received at the governor's office, it has been established, which maintain that the conservation department's work is being demoralized and hindered by constant inquiries and talk of investigations. Several of them have pointedly asked Heil to call off agents of August Frey, director of the research agency, who have been examining department records, accounts, and transactions during recent weeks.

Impede Work

Several of the statements sent in by sporting groups have declared that some members of the conservation commission have impeded efficient work of the conservation department staff by their criticisms of administrative practices and methods.

Moreover, it has been reported from several sources that sportsmen in Waupaca county last week were circulating a petition asking the governor to prevent Commissioner Mark S. Catlin of Appleton, appointed by Heil last year, from "undermining" the work of department employees and commission debates has been critical of the work of the department.

Meanwhile the exact status of the research bureau's investigation of the department, announced by Director Frey many weeks ago, remained unknown. Frey has in the

D.A.R. Again Asks for Strong Army and Navy

Washington—(P)—The Daughters of the American Revolution reiterated their stand for a strong army and navy today, declaring in a resolution that "events in the world today" made national defense imperative.

Other resolutions, adopted in the closing business session of the annual convention.

Opposed legislation to require registration of international propaganda agents.

Affirmed support of restricted immigration policies.

Expressed appreciation for the "gracious courtesy" of former member Eleanor Roosevelt in receiving D. A. R. members at a White House reception.

Mrs. Roosevelt resigned from the society last year because it refused to rent its constitution hall for a concert by a Negro contralto, Marian Anderson.

Man, 89, Proves He Is Alive After Being Thought Dead 60 Years

New York—(P)—An 89-year-old man whose wife and daughter had believed he was dead 60 years turned up in surrogate's court today and to the satisfaction of Surrogate James A. Foley established his identity and the right to contest a will leaving an estate of $400,000.

The man was John F. Mulhall of San Antonio, Texas, husband of Mrs. Susan J. Mulhall, of 831 Park avenue, New York.

His testimony that he was Mrs. Mulhall's husband and the father of the late, wealthy eccentric Mrs. Isabel McElie, was corroborated by his sister, Mrs. Mary Haskell of Denver, Colo.

Mulhall in 1874.

The daughter, who once said "the more I see of humans the more I think of dogs," died April 27, 1939.

Pallbearer Stricken At Neighbor's Funeral

Vincennes, Ind.—(P)—Earl Lagow, 56, farmer, was a pallbearer at the funeral of his neighbor, A. B. Cunningham, at Russellville, Ill., near here. Just after helping put the casket in the hearse late yesterday, Lagow had a heart attack. Before a doctor could be called, he was dead.

Battle Between Allies And Germany Indicated After Land Forces Clash

War on Land Must Decide Norway Fate

Although naval and air power in the case of Norway are all-important in the matter of supplying the rival allied and German expeditionary forces, nothing has occurred in modern warfare to disprove the classic theory of military strategists that only the infantry can win, occupy and hold a desired piece of territory.

It is with this in mind that the armchair experts watch the progress of the British Tommies, who according to London now are landing in Norway in force and seeking out the grey-green uniforms of reichswehr troops to drive them from the country's key points, virtually all of which they occupied in a few hours with their Hitler-directed lightning coup exactly 10 days ago.

And as Norway goes—to the allies or to Germany—so goes all Scandinavia, most observers agree. And possession of Scandinavia obviously may become a determining factor in the outcome of the larger war.

Three Major Sectors

The fight for Norway seemed to be developing in three main sectors:

About Narvik, the Arctic ore port at which the British presumably could land forces with the least difficulty but which is remote from the more important parts of the country; about Trondheim, western port and rail center of great strategic importance; and about Oslo, capital and key to southeastern Norway.

Operations appeared to be well spread out from these centers, with the Norwegians for the moment at least stalling a fighting retreat.

The Norwegians reported that in addition they had fought the Germans near the western ports of Bergen and Stavanger—the latter now an important German air base which the British have been hammering heavily with both naval and air bombardment for several days.

The possibility of the war spreading to the southeast, continued to trouble the Balkan nations, which carried further a round-up of Germans within their borders and of their nationals suspected of pro-Nazi sympathies. In particular they acted to prevent such boring from within as they believe occurred in Norway prior to the swift German coup of April 9.

The government's purpose, these informants explained, was to give the military power beforehand to deal promptly with any emergencies that might arise.

De Geer's speech was broadcast to Holland's colonial possessions in the East and West Indies as well as to the homeland.

He appealed to the Dutch nation to keep calm and to maintain confidence despite anxieties lest the European war spread to the low countries.

The prime minister said that "above all else, in these times, it must be our first duty to safeguard our neutrality."

Former Assistant Dean At Marquette Is Dead

Milwaukee—(P)—Word was received here today that John McDill Fox, 49, former assistant dean of the Marquette university law school, had died in Washington, D. C., late yesterday after an operation.

Fox, a member of a pioneer Wisconsin family, was a member of the local staff of the department of interior at the time of his death.

After leaving Marquette he was dean of the law school at Catholic university in Washington from 1930 to 1935.

He was the son of the late Dr. William Fox, a widely known Milwaukee physician, and a nephew of Dr. Philip Fox, late Madison physician after whom former Governor Philip Fox LaFollette was named.

Dr. Klepfer Is Acting Head of State Hospital

Waupun—(P)—Dr. J. F. Klepfer has been named acting superintendent of the Central State Hospital for the Criminal Insane to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Dr. W. A. Deerbake. Dr. Klepfer, previously was assistant superintendent.

Former Yugoslav Premier Accused of Plot To Overthrow Government With Aid of Nazis

Belgrade—(P)—Discovery of a plot to overthrow the government of Premier Dragisa Cvetkovic was reported today in quarters close to the government following an announcement that former premier Milan Stoyadinovic would be interned in a mountain fastness under heavy guard.

These sources indicated that success of the plot had hinged on entry of German troops into Yugoslavia. Stoyadinovic was taken into custody after a police raid on his home disclosed documents linking him with Nazi "fifth column" activity in Yugoslavia.

A cabinet communique drafted for publication in Yugoslav newspapers tomorrow said Stoyadinovic was ordered interned because "his activity was dangerous to the peace and order of Yugoslavia."

The details of the plot, it was asserted, were discovered when police examined private papers seized in a midnight raid on the former premier's home on Tuesday.

Two of Stoyadinovic's followers who were members of his cabinet, Dobrovoye Stosovic and Djura Yanovic, are under close police watch on suspicion of participation in the plot. Quantities of documents found in their homes were examined by the police, who also occupied the premises of the Serbian radical party which Stoyadinovic formed recently.

Stoyadinovic was ordered taken to the mountain village of Rudnik in a police car, accompanied by detectives and gendarmes armed with repeating rifles. Police cars bearing other armed men were ordered to lead the way and bring up the rear in order to forestall any possible attempt by his followers to free the former premier.

British and Nazi Troops in Encounter Near Trondheim

Germans Reported Rushing North to Meet English; Berlin Claims Steady Advances

Berlin—(P)—Steady advances in Norway by constantly-reinforced German troops and new blows against the British navy were reported to the nation today on the eve of its celebration of Adolf Hitler's fifty-first birthday anniversary.

Officially-reported successes included:

At sea—Three allied submarines were destroyed in the Skagerrak and Kattegat and a submarine was sunk and British warships and transports hit in a sudden German air attack north of German-occupied Narvik in far northern Norway. A Norwegian torpedo-boat was destroyed in Hardanger fjord.

On land—Positions are being consolidated in far-flung sectors in Norway, ranging from the region near Oslo to the ore-shipping port of Narvik. A DNB report said German "fighting groups" in the Oslo region were "advancing slowly but steadily" and had reached a point 30 miles north of Kongsvinger and Horn, or about 75 miles northeast of Oslo.

Minister Sent Home

In the diplomatic field—Germany ordered Arnd Scheel, Norwegian minister to Berlin, to leave the German capital today, an action tantamount to breaking off diplomatic relations with the royal Norwegian government.

The high command in its regular communique said "reinforcements

London—(P)—Damaging of the 1,400-ton destroyer Eclipse in a German bomber attack was disclosed today with the announcement the vessel had reached her base. The admiralty issued the following communique:

"As a result of a near miss during an enemy bombing attack some days ago, H. M. S. Eclipse was damaged, but she is now at her base."

London—(P)—Allied maneuvers, including the first reported engagement of British and German land forces in Norway, pointed today toward the head-on clash of Europe's belligerents on the Scandinavian battleground.

A British news agency, Reuters, reported from Stockholm that the first encounter occurred at Namsos, on the Atlantic coast 100 miles north of the city of Trondheim.

Dispatches reaching the Swedish capital said the German forces had been repulsed. Swedish frontier reports said Namsos was the point picked by the British for their last troop landings while Norwegian forces concentrated at Steinkjer, 30 miles nearer Trondheim.

Apparently the Germans had been rushed north from the German-controlled, strategic Trondheim region to meet the British landing parties. Perhaps they sidestepped or trapped the Norwegian concentration at Steinkjer, south of Namsos.

Ski Patrols Busy

These reports, together with advances that Norwegian ski patrols are deploying to harass the thin line the Germans have thrown across Norway to the Swedish border on the Trondheim-Steinkjer railway, give the blueprint for battle.

The struggle for control of Norwegian skies is continuing but still undecided between Nazi airmen and those of the British Royal Air Force and the air arm of the fleet.

The British press, however, expressed confidence that powerful naval forces flanking Norway could turn a victory for the allied land forces.

The newspapers held that the Germans had been cut off from effective help from the German fleet, which was described as crippled in the first week of the Norwegian campaign.

More "Tommies" Arrive

The British war office's second laconic communique since the spread of the war to Norway April 9 told yesterday of continuing debarkation of British troops on Norway's shores and of their contact with Norwegian forces and added that "operations are continuing."

A Norwegian communique, about the same time, said contact had been made with allied forces "by both sea and land" and that the first allied liaison officers had reached Norwegian army headquarters.

The London News-Chronicle demanded quicker action in Norway and hinted that the fighting forces were not being given free rein by "some important members of the government."

Authoritative diplomatic quarters declared the British government was not treating the Norwegian front as a "sideshow" and that the Germans would encounter the full might of the allied forces.

Shipping Fleet Strong

Arthur Salter, parliamentary secretary of the ministry of shipping, declared in a speech last night that the British merchant marine is as strong as ever despite Germany's torpedoes, magnetic mine and bombing attacks.

In the last seven months, he said, "the enemy has destroyed less than 3 per cent of our ships."

The latest loss to British shipping was the torpedoing of the iron ore steamer Swainby, 4,935 tons, Wednesday night off north Scotland, after it had escaped capture in the German occupation of Narvik, Norway's far northern ore port, April 9.

The sinking was disclosed when the 38-man crew was landed at a Scottish port.

An air raid warning was sounded yesterday in the Shetland islands when a German Heinkel plane appeared. It was chased away by British fighters before it could drop bombs.

New York Racketeer Reaches Leavenworth

Leavenworth, Kans.—(P)—Louis "La Pike" Buchalter, New York racketeer, reached Leavenworth today to start a 14-year federal penitentiary term for a narcotics law violation.

Buchalter, listed as Public Enemy No. 4 by the federal bureau of investigation, first was taken to the prison annex which houses narcotics violators. Under a change in plans, however, he was to be taken later to the main federal prison a few miles distant.

Police at the time revealed that the Germans had entered the country by presenting documents signed by Stoyadinovic when he was premier (from 1936 to 1939), giving them the privilege of "prospect mining for oil."

CIO Triumphs In Voting at Motors Plants

Wins Right to Bargain for More Than 120,000 G.M. Employees

Detroit.—A new course for collective bargaining in the plants of the nation's largest automobile manufacturer was charted today in the wake of a decisive CIO victory over an A. F. of L. industrial union in Wednesday's General Motors employees' election.

The United Automobile Workers CIO, by winning elections in 48 G.M. plants, gained the right to bargain for more than 120,000 of the corporation's hourly wage earners.

Five plants, with 6,537 workers certified to the national labor relations board for the elections, selected the A. F. of L.-affiliated United Automobile Workers to represent them.

Although individual plants were designated as separate bargaining units, the corporation agreed to negotiate with each union for all the plants it won on "issues common to all" such plants.

Lewis Rejoices

At Washington, John L. Lewis, CIO chief, hailed the selection of the U.A.W.-CIO in most plants as "a triumph for industrial unionism."

No plant in Michigan, principal center of General Motors operations, gave the A. F. of L. union a majority. Its victories were in Fisher Body and Chevrolet plants in Norwood, Ohio, and Kansas City, Mo., and in the new departure division at Meridian, Conn.

In addition to its 48 plants, the U.A.W.-CIO had a majority of the valid vote in a small Detroit Chevrolet experimental unit, but since sufficient votes were challenged to upset this majority, a run-off may be necessary.

Other run-off elections appeared in prospect in the big Delco-Remy plant at Anderson, Ind., where more employees preferred neither union than voted for either, and in the Baltimore Chevrolet and Detroit Fisher Body No. 40 plants, where neither union obtained a majority.

Cromwell Runs For Senate Seat

Announces Candidacy for Democratic Nomination in New Jersey

Somerville, N. J.—James H. R. Cromwell, United States minister to Canada, formally announced today his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for United States senator from New Jersey and linked himself to the economic and international views of President Roosevelt.

Cromwell was in Canada as the statement of candidacy was made from his home here through state senator James J. Bowser.

Identifying himself as "what is generally referred to as a 'liberal,'" Cromwell, 43, an economist, former automotive executive, real estate promoter and the husband of Doris Duke, "the richest girl in the world," allied himself to the president with:

"President Roosevelt has demonstrated that our form of government is adequate to meet changing economic, social and world conditions and that our representative constitutional democracy will survive. I stand with him in his ceaseless endeavor to find through our democratic processes security and a better way of life for the great masses of our people. I stand with him in his sound and successful policy of keeping America at peace by facing facts as they are instead of pretending we live in a world apart."

Cromwell is unopposed thus far for the Democratic nomination. U. S. Senator W. Warren Barbour is unopposed for re-election on the Republican ticket.

Cromwell became United States minister to Canada in January, and last month precipitated criticism and demands by some congressmen for his recall because of a pro-alley, anti-Nazi speech at Ottawa.

"Show" Sounds Like "Throw"; He Gets a Clock in the Face

Independence, Mo.—Kenneth Morford sleepily shut off the alarm; turned the clock's dial toward the wall. He wanted 40 winks more with a clear conscience.

His daughter, 2-year-old Audrey, waltzed gaily into the bedroom and slammed the door. Morford awakened.

"Show me the clock," he called between yawns.

Little Audrey, anxious to please, thought he said "throw."

The clock caught daddy squarely on the nose at exactly 7:01 a. m.

Quick Approval In House Sought For Relief Plan

New Deal Leaders Ignore GOP Questions Regarding 'Slush Fund'

Washington.—Administration leaders, disregarding Republican queries as to whether a "campaign slush fund" was sought, were working quickly today for speedy house approval of President Roosevelt's plan to maintain relief spending at the present $1,500,000,000-a-year rate.

In a letter to Speaker Bankhead, Mr. Roosevelt asked yesterday for discretionary authority to spend a $75,000,000 WPA appropriation in eight months, if necessary, instead of the full year as he originally recommended.

"There is certainly at the present time," the president wrote, "no information available to justify a reduction in the program of the work projects administration below that which has been carried on in the current fiscal year with an appropriation of approximately one and one-half billion dollars."

O. K. Logan Walter Bill

Representative Fish (R-N. Y.) asked on the house floor whether "another campaign slush fund" was in the offing.

"Does it mean that another 500,000 people are going to be padded onto the pay rolls during September, October and November at public expense?" he asked.

After three days of debate, the house yesterday overwhelmingly approved the Logan-Walter bill to provide for uniform procedure by federal administrative agencies and for speedier court review of their orders.

The measure went to the senate by the topheavy vote of 280 to 97, but leaders there have made no plans for its consideration.

"I'll be against the bill," said Senator Minton (D-Ind.). "I don't think you can write one bill to cover all government agencies any more than you can prescribe one dose of medicine for all patients."

AMERICA SHIFTS ATTENTION TO EAST

The United States has proclaimed to the world a "hands-off" policy for the Netherlands East Indies, rich and strategically vital colonial empire in the South Seas. As Secretary of State Hull issued his pronouncement British and French forces in the Far East were making ready for any eventuality—including the chance of a Japanese attempt to seize the islands. Japan has expressed concern for the future of the islands should the European war engulf the Netherlands. The relative positions of the Netherlands East Indies (horizontal shading) and Japan and the territory it dominates or occupies (oblique shading) are shown on this Associated Press map. Between Japan's empire and the Netherlands' islands are the Philippine islands. Coincident with the crisis in the Far East, the United States may renew its advocacy of a major air and submarine base at Guam, tiny American island outpost which is 1500 miles from Tokyo and the same distance from the air and naval base at Manila.

Senator O'Mahoney Denies He's Against Machine Age

BY W. B. RAGSDALE

Washington.—Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) is not opposed to the machine age at all; he's for it.

All the talk about his being for a tax on machines is wetter than an uncaught trout. That's not what he proposed at all.

What he did propose was a theoretical approach to a solution to the unemployment problem. He doesn't claim it is a foolproof theory. But it opens the way to a study of the whole problem.

The senator feels that during the thirties, the American people and their government simply tried through WPA and otherwise to deal with the effects of unemployment without tracking the problem back to its source—like taking the victim of a hit-and-run driver to the hospital without trying to track down the criminal.

What O'Mahoney has in mind is fighting unemployment at the spot where it is created. He dropped his bill into the hopper to provoke discussion of the problem. He got the discussion with reverse English.

The search for a simple phrase in which to hold a somewhat abstruse idea up to public gaze tagged the bill as one which would tax machines.

Instead, O'Mahoney says, his idea is to give a tax credit to every employer of labor which shall be based on the amount the employer spends for man power. This would provide an incentive for employment.

On the other side of the problem, a balancing tax would be put on the earnings that have been achieved by the machine displacement of man power.

In a round-about way, the theory is that of a wage subsidy.

Schedule Hearing on Dam for White Lake

Post-Crescent-Madison Bureau

Madison.—The public service commission has announced that a public hearing on the proposal to dam the outlet to White Lake in Waupaca county will be held at the capitol on May 2.

The Waupaca county board proposes with the aid of WPA funds to construct a dam at the outlet of the lake in order to restore the natural water level to preserve fish and other game. The board recently asked the state conservation department to assist in the financing of the project, but the latter has not yet made a decision. The attorney general has been asked to rule on the legality of the proposal.

Allied Strategy in Norway Precludes Possibility of German Invasion of Sweden

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

New York.—Further indications in today's news that a major battle for possession of the important Norwegian port of Trondheim is boiling up gives us a fair opportunity to guess the Anglo-French strategy underlying their widely separated and seemingly disjointed operations.

It is my personal view from the facts at hand that this strategy grows out of an expectation that Sweden will be invaded by the Germans and so become one of the allies.

This idea is based on the emphasis the allies appear to be giving the desirability of rail connections with Sweden, especially as regards the isolated attack on Narvik way up there inside the Arctic circle.

To the onlooker the allied program may seem to be developing rather slowly and allowing the Germans undue time for consolidating their positions. It should be borne in mind, however, that it is a difficult and highly dangerous undertaking. Failure would be costly not only in lives but in the moral effect on neutrals, who are watching this conflict with intense self-interest.

British Precision

It strikes me that the operations are proceeding with that British precision which generally spells inevitability.

The allied-Swedish cooperation—assuming German invasion—would have three objects. These would be: (1) the fulfillment of the allied promise to aid Sweden in event of attack, (2) the much-desired extension of the northern theater of war from which the allies could strike at Hitler's right flank and (3) support for the undoubtedly difficult task of ousting the established German forces from central and southern Norway.

The Anglo-French operations appear to be divided into four major phases, if we include the potential assault on Trondheim. These are:

(1) The battle for Narvik, (2) the probable assault on Trondheim and a determined effort to make a landing of expeditionary troops with their supplies, (3) The air and naval bombardments of Bergen and Stavanger in the southern part of the country, and (4) The allied combining of the Skagerrak and Kattegat with the idea of cutting the Germans off from access to Norway and Sweden by water.

Now if you don't mind getting out those maps again, let's see if we can bring these four operations together so that they make sense and substantiate the suggestion of ultimate success.

ment of this key position is an obvious development.

4. Depriving the Germans of the use of the sea for transport will isolate Sweden and Norway and so facilitate the allied attack on Norway. This naturally is one of the very essential parts of the program.

Well, there's what looks like the allied strategic plan to me. And it's a pretty good plan even if they aren't following it.

40 Persons Lost Lives Last Month In Road Accidents

State Traffic Toll Increasing Over 1939, Bulletin States

Death struck 40 persons in last month's traffic accidents in Wisconsin, bringing the state traffic toll to 126 at the end of three months, an increase of 20 over the first quarter of 1939, according to a bulletin received from the state motor vehicle department by Arnold Krueger, Outagamie county highway commissioner.

The need of increased pedestrian education is seen in the mounting toll of pedestrian deaths, according to R. C. Salisbury, director of the safety division of the department. Motor vehicles struck and killed 19 walkers in March alone. In the first three months of 1940 fatal injuries were suffered by 58 pedestrians; in the same period last year 41 pedestrians were killed.

Deaths due to truck-automobile mishaps decreased by more than 50 per cent, numbering 17 last year and only eight this year. Trains killed 14 motorists in three months last year, compared with nine this year.

Fatalities resulting from fixed object crashes jumped from 10 in the first quarter of 1939 to 19 in the same period this year. Deaths in non-collision accidents increased from eight to thirteen, two-car collisions from fourteen to fifteen.

Entries for Marbles Tournament Must be Filed by Saturday

Entries for the WPA marbles tournament may be filed with Lawrence Mackin, recreational leader, until Saturday morning, the day of the tournament. The marbles tourney will start at 10 o'clock Saturday morning and the boys will compete in brackets. One loss will eliminate the entrant, Mackin said. The winner and runner-up will go to a regional tournament at Oshkosh. The state tournament will be held later at Milwaukee.

Any boy living in Outagamie county is eligible to enter the meet. Entry blanks may be secured at 108 E. College avenue or at the WPA recreation center at the public library.

Leaders to Map Plans For Citizenship Day

Executive committee members and teachers of the Outagamie County Citizenship Day program will attend a dinner meeting at 6:30 Monday evening at Appleton High school to make plans for the induction day ceremony Sunday, May 19. Classes are being conducted at present in the county for all 14-year-olds. The induction day ceremony will climax the classes of instruction in citizenship.

Laux Given Permit To Erect Building

J. P. Laux, 903 N. Union street, yesterday was granted a permit to construct a building for the storage of ice. The building will be 12 by 24 feet in size and will cost approximately $350. It will be built of concrete blocks with sheet metal siding.

Officials Must Take Office Oaths by Apr. 27

Officials who were elected by the common council Wednesday night to appointive city posts must sign their oaths of office by Saturday, April 27 according to Carl J. Becher, city clerk. The oath must be signed before the appointee can take office.

Four-Lane Traffic On College Avenue Under Consideration

Four-lane traffic on College avenue may become a reality again if the city council approves a resolution which has been introduced by Alderman Ervin Bogan.

College avenue was cut into double lanes two years ago when the late Mike Steinhauer was chairman of the council's traffic committee and many drivers liked the system believing it speeded auto traffic.

When the traffic lines were painted last year, the practice was dropped. The idea was revived with Alderman Bogan's resolution, which has been referred to the traffic committee.

Permit Applications Are Before Committee

Four applications for licenses to tend bar in Appleton will be considered by the city council's license committee at its next meeting. They were made by Harry Nelson, 815 N. Clark street; Albert Kobussen, Little Chute; William H. Juse, 1421 N. Appleton street; and Bruce Mielke, 1002 W. Packard street.

New London Track Squad to Perform At Green Bay East

Coach Charlesworth Will Take Team of 30 To Dual Meet

New London—A tentative squad of about 30 men will be taken to Green Bay Saturday morning by Coach G. M. Charlesworth for a dual track meet with East Green Bay High. The New London High school boys have been handicapped again by the weather and there has been little time for coaching or trials.

Besides millers William Schmidt and Marvin Sommers, the brightest prospect is Harold Pies in the pole vault. An outstanding vaulter last year, he has been clearing 11 feet, better than the conference mark, in recent practices. He finished second in the stiff competition of the invitation meet at Wisconsin Rapids two weeks ago.

Also back on the squad after a lay-off because of an ailment is Bernard Freiburger, a junior, who was second high scorer for the team in track competition last year. He runs the high hurdles in record time and throws the discus a fair distance.

Tentative Lineup
Coach Charlesworth will take along three men for each event but some posts were still undecided Thursday. The following is a tentative lineup:

1 mile, Schmidt, Sommers, Gene Wyman; half mile, Kenneth Ross, Jack Dent, Orland Otis or Robert Weiler; 440-yard run, Robert Mavis, Howard Manchen, Lloyd Bodoh; 220-yard run and 100-yard dash, Robert Nelson, Robert Ross; low hurdles, Pies, Clifford Schoneck; high hurdles, Bernard Freiburger; Glenn Smith, Lee Loughrin; mile relay, Manchen, Ross, George Meertz, Eddie Huettnier; pole vault, Pies, David Stern, Robert Seering, Russell Jagoditch; high jump, Ken Poppy, Donald Brisco, William Schmidt; broad jump, Ross, Nelson, Huettnier; shot put, Arden Smith, Dave Wilson, Ray Brush; discus, Freiburger, Bert Saterstrom.

Flagship of Fishing Fleet Makes Test Run

New London—The flagship of the New London fishing fleet was launched on the Wolf river this week when Arthur Freiburger, local mechanic, floated a homemade 24-foot, flat-bottomed, 78-horsepowered scow he completed recently. In first tests the automobile-powered boat made speeds estimated at 20 miles per hour but with changes in propeller design the new fishing cruiser is expected to make better time in reaching the choice fishing spots on the Wolf.

Birthday Party Given At Freedom Dwelling

Freedom—Relatives surprised John Friebe at his home here Sunday in honor of his birthday. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Friebe, Reedsburg; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Friebe, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Friebe, Kimberly; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Friebe and son David.

World War Souvenirs Explained to Pupils

New London—World war souvenirs of Miss Mae Monahan, 210 E. Pine street, a wartime nurse, were exhibited and explained before the seventh and eighth grade classes of the Most Precious Blood school Thursday by her nephew, John Deacy. The collection includes mementos of the actual battlefields and numerous articles characteristic of the various peoples and countries of Europe. Mr. Deacy has shown the material to public grade school children and the history classes at Washington High school.

Swing of Wisconsin Away From Democrats Since Last Election Has Been Particularly Sharp

BY DR. GEORGE GALLUP

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

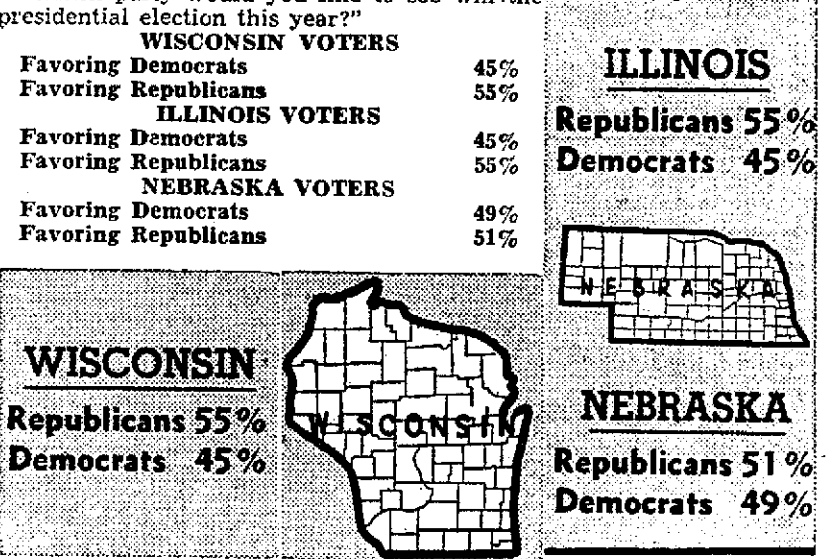

Princeton, N. J.—Much argument and confusion has arisen in political circles over the precise meaning of the primary results in Wisconsin, Nebraska and Illinois. Each party can find something in the figures to bolster its own cause.

As an index of national sentiment primaries suffer from the fact that the turnout of voters is usually small, and that the elections are often uncontested, as was the case in the G.O.P. presidential primary in Illinois where Thomas E. Dewey ran alone.

To find the true sentiment in any state it is necessary to consult a cross-section of all voters—those who take the trouble to vote in a primary and those who do not. The American Institute of Public Opinion has just completed intensive surveys of Wisconsin, Illinois and Nebraska.

The results indicate that all three of these states are leaning Republican at the present time.

The swing of sentiment away from the Democrats since 1936 has been particularly sharp in Illinois and Wisconsin. Carried by the Democrats with huge majorities in the presidential election four years ago, these two states now show a Democratic deflection of from 14 to 23 percentage points. Present sentiment there is, of course, subject to change as the presidential campaign develops. But the situation today is shown by the Institute surveys as follows:

Amid confusion over the results of recent primaries in Illinois, Wisconsin and Nebraska, a Gallup Poll indicates that these three states are leaning Republican at the present time.

The extent of shift in sentiment since 1936 may be seen from the following comparison. The Democrats carried Nebraska in the Presidential election four years ago with 58 per cent of the major party vote; today the Democratic percentage in the state is 49, judging by the poll. Illinois went Democratic by 59 per cent in 1936; today that party's strength is 45 per cent. Wisconsin was 63 per cent Democratic in 1936, and only 45 per cent today.

Kaukauna, Mr. and Mrs. George Friebe, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Friebe, Russell Hoersch, Miss Louaine Friebe and Ray Leider, Kaukauna, Supper was served.

The Cinderella club met at the home of Mary Geenen Thursday. The club met at the home of Jeanne Garvey last week.

PERFECT ATTENDANCE
Eight students of the Binghamton school, town of Black Creek, were perfect in attendance last month, according to Gertrude Laird, teacher. They are Eunice Kruse, Lorraine Kruse, Beulah Volkman, Gilbert Tetzlaff, Royal Emerich, Gloria Hinz, Harold Emerich and Les Smith.

175 Persons Attend Mother and Daughter Party at Shiocton

Shiocton—Approximately 175 women attended the mother and daughter party held at Shiocton high school gymnasium Wednesday evening. The party was sponsored by the Modern Frisollas and the home economics classes. The program consisted of a welcome given by Rosan Herminath, president of the organization. This was followed by a mother's response given by Mrs. Will Oaks.

The octet sang "Little Grey Home in the West" with Miss Dorothy Grehn as accompanist. Girls were chosen to represent each of the classes. They included Mary Ellen Cummings, Nettie Lou Brooker and Audrey Keenan, who spoke on "Home Economics — the Girl." This was followed by group singing, a declamation, "The Least of These," by Ardyne Ames. Brief talks were given by Miss Karen Fosal, home economics instructor.

The main event of the evening was the style show entitled "Through the Day with Sue," with Ruby Last as commentator. "Mother Machree" was sung by Mary Santkyl.

Pegler Writes an Open Letter To Building Service Employees

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER
New York—To the members of the Building Service Employees' International Union of the American Federation of Labor:
Greetings:
Your honored international president, George Scalise, who learned the trade of bargaining agent in the same school that was patronized by Willie Bloff, the dictator of the amusement craft unions, has recently bought a country mansion far from the crowded slums in which most of you live. He paid $22,500 for this home, and his expenditures on the same up to this point amount to about $35,000, all of it in currency. Investigation shows for some reason your international president does not like to use checks, and neither does he like to be known as the owner of a mansion; wherefore he formed a holding company to disguise his ownership.
Many of you—that is, the chambermaids among you—are caring for upward of 20 rooms every day in hotels ranging in character from mediocre to bad, for wages of $13 a week, and $20 a week is considered to be good pay for the most prosperous of you. Out of this you pay your initiation fees and dues, plus occasional fines for such offenses as speaking disrespectfully of your union officers.
On the off chance that some of you may have failed to read the provisions of the international constitution dealing with the duties and privileges of your president, you may be interested to read as follows:
As the radio orators say, "I quote: The president shall submit to the annual meeting of the general executive board a statement of the activities of his office and the amount expended since the last meeting of the general executive board. He shall draw vouchers on the general secretary-treasurer for such sums as his activities require, and the same shall be paid by the general secretary-treasurer." Unquote.
Another provision of the constitution says that all vouchers shall be submitted to your international president for approval and signature.
Now, your honored president

Pegler

boasts that there are 100,000 of you in good standing, which is to say that you are paid up, and it is a fact that the international treasury receives 35 cents a month from each of you, which would come to $35,000 a month, or $420,000 a year. But, allowing for a few delinquencies, let us say that the annual income of the international treasury is just $400,000 even.
So now what do we see?
Well, from the wording of those constitutional provisions it is plain enough that you are kicking together a fund of $40,000 a year out of your pal and giving George Scalise permission to help himself. Because it just says that he shall submit a statement of the amount expended and that he shall draw vouchers for such sums as his activities require and that the general secretary-treasurer shall honor them with your money. It doesn't say that he must explain what he spent the money for. It says he shall submit a statement of the whole amount. And it doesn't specify which of his activities shall be financed by the union treasury. It just says that he shall draw vouchers, payable by the secretary-treasurer, for such sums as his activities require. His activities may include the purchase of a mansion or betting on the races, and under the terms of the constitution you have to finance them.
How do you like that and how do you like the further provision which gives him, personally, the power to allow to his fellow-officers of your union, including the ex-convicts among them, the sums which they may need or to withhold legitimate funds from any officers who happen to be legitimate?
You realize, don't you, that you never elected Scalise to the presidency of your union with free permission to dip into your annual contributions of $400,000. You never even voted on the presidency. You were just unionized under a charter issued by the A. F. of L.

If you can get a day off some time and get enough of you together you might hire a bus and drive up to see the mansion you have bought for your international president. Just drive by; don't go in. He might be entertaining his friend Little Augie, the old anti-labor racketeer who gave him his start.

OUR RECIPROCAL TRADE TREATIES

In signing the bill that will continue our method of trade treaties for another three years the President said that the bill's passage "is expressive of the determination on the part of our people to retain unimpaired this powerful instrument for promoting our national economic well being and for strengthening the foundations of stable peace."

The real proposition before congress, and the only worthwhile one, was whether unrestrained power should be granted the President to negotiate these treaties or their operation be contingent upon approval by the senate.

We hope the country is coming definitely to approve this method of tariff regulation, that is, the treaty method as distinguished from a tariff bill passed by congress. Empowering the president to make these treaties without any approval in congress may even have been justified in order to start the procedure since it necessitated a tremendous amount of detailed work which could not have been helped by congressional bickering.

But the notion that so momentous a matter to worker and farmer alike as the tariffs to be placed on goods originating in many spots in the world where the standards of living are actually below the American's feet, should be made independent of any congressional examination and approval is quite another matter.

The result of any such general procedure for the future as interpreted in the light of Mr. Roosevelt's statements and his acts will indicate the danger.

For instance, Mr. Roosevelt while a candidate for the presidency said:

"I know of no excessively high tariff duties on farm products. I do not intend that such duties shall be lowered."

In spite of this very definite statement Mr. Roosevelt has negotiated treaties wherein the tariffs on approximately 250 farm products in various forms of condition or preparation have been reduced. Actually 166 of these have been reduced the full limit of 50 per cent permitted under the original act of congress authorizing the trade treaties.

So much for one of the President's promises which already stuff the wastebasket.

Nevertheless, the treaty method, and preferably a treaty approved by the senate, is much more orderly and gives much higher promise of eventual advantage than the old system whereby congress passed an act permitting any flood of goods from any country so long as certain tariffs were paid, an act which knew more of log-rolling, trading and I'll-scratch-your-back-if-you-scratch-mine than any other form of legislation.

The people may revolt against the present method if they confuse it with the actual terms of some of the treaties. They would like to understand probably why during 1938 and 1939 our government invested over 30 million dollars of public funds in buying up certain commodities to keep them off the market and at the same time, due to duty reductions in the trade treaties already enacted, permitted entry of 92 million dollars worth of those identical commodities.

But the point we would like to make and we hope the public doesn't forget is that the criticism for the terms included in the treaties should not be a criticism of this method of handling imports and exports.

BASEBALL BREAKS IN THE FRONT DOOR

Bob Feller pitched a no-hit, no-run game for the Cleveland Indians to open the American League season against the Chicago White Sox.

Here is an omen writ in words of fire across a cloudy sky. For never before had any such performance attend upon the opening of the season.

Perhaps it signifies that in starting our second hundred years of professional baseball in this country we are going to start it with one of those exploding bangs that makes everyone sit up and take notice that the game of our fathers and grandfathers and their fathers before them has established certain traditions worthy of preservation. Perhaps the inventions by which it is possible to partake of this sport of speed and accuracy even in the nighttime are playing their big part in widening the possibilities of attendance. Perhaps an East Indian who can climb a rope tied up somewhere in the air can figure out other possibilities. But for America which looks down upon mysticism and superstition it is enough to know that the season has started under the most gratifying and auspicious of circumstances.

HITLER'S NORWAY ADVENTURE

Might makes right in war. And however reckless a step may be if it turns out successfully it will be considered a great piece of strategy.

With those facts in mind consider the apparent advantages the Allies gained by the attack on Norway.

Norway is the owner of the third largest merchant fleet in the world. Last September it had nearly five million tons, about a quarter the tonnage of Britain. Since then it has lost about 100,000 tons only and it has gained from new launchings a substantial part of that.

Germany could not have captured more than a few hundred thousand tons of this fleet because it is operated all over the seven seas and only that part of it was in Oslo and other captured ports that happened to be delivering a cargo.

The Norwegian government has placed itself officially with the Allies and its merchant fleet goes with them too. This is going to be a great help in provisioning and supplying Britain and all her dependencies. The submarines will have to speed up their depredations twenty-fold to make Britain fearsome about its backlog of ocean tonnage.

Britain, of course, will lose an important source of food supply in Denmark but she will have the bottoms to bring an additional food supply from North America. The journey will be longer and more expensive but there need be no dearth of food.

Giving the German high command credit for the care it has already evidenced in many other particulars it must have weighed these factors and probably offset them or gambled with them having in mind the absolute necessity of Swedish ore and the possibility that Norway might have been taken without firing a shot.

GREENLAND IN THE NEWS

When, in the year 986, Erik the Red returned to Iceland from a venture to the West he described to people a beautiful land he had called Greenland.

But Erik was a red hot real estate salesman, too hot to handle these days, and he had christened an immense piece of glacial ice by a beautiful name just to induce people to settle there.

With a length of 1600 miles from north to south, a breadth of 700 miles and an area of about 800,000 square miles, Greenland only has about 20,000 people, eskimo and white.

But Greenland is in the Western Hemisphere and America may very properly observe with critical eye any transfer of sovereignty which this country considers forced or predatory.

The climate of Greenland is Arctic, and more Arctic than many places in the same latitude. Its huge glaciers, some 60 miles wide, keep moving down to the sea and breaking off into icebergs that are taken by the Arctic current past the Canadian shores and then floated eastward toward Europe where they are destroyed when they meet with the Gulf Stream. This situation makes dense and heavy fogs the order of the day in Greenland's life.

Nevertheless it could conceivably though remotely, be made a base of supply and ultimately used to the disadvantage of America. And since it is part of the Western Hemisphere our interest in it is natural and proper.

Too much precaution can never be taken in protecting our homeland, its liberties and the billions of people who are yet to live here and enjoy them.

It is unnecessary to say that America does not want Greenland for itself. And it should be equally unnecessary to say that America will not look with complacency upon the probable or possible use of this vast island for other than normal and peaceful ventures.

LEAVING HOME

You will move your clothes from the wardrobe;
You will take your hat from the rack.
You will gather your prized possessions
With never a fond look back!

All of the rooms will miss you!
Your young feet will no more
Skip on the silent carpets
Out of the open door

You can go from the house that loves you,
From the place of your birth depart,
But while there is breath in my body,
You cannot move from my heart!

There you will speak as always,
There will your true home be;
There will your love abiding,
Strengthen and comfort me!

BENEDICTION

(The Saturday Evening Post)

We drop our curtain on 1939 with this fine flowering of the spirit of the New Deal.
The Cleveland American League baseball club pays young Ken Keltner about $7,500 a year to play the hot corner from March to October. Keltner applied to the Ohio unemployment compensation board for a $15-a-week allowance, arguing that he was unemployed five months of the year.
Keltner is not a citizen of Ohio. He lives in Milwaukee. After the bureau had said no and made the application public, the enterprising third baseman said: "I thought I had compensation coming. I am withdrawing the claim to save everybody a lot of trouble."

Washington—If and when congress investigates the sale of the latest U. S. airplanes to the Allies, it will run across some revealing facts.

However, these facts will cause the opposite of the usual embarrassment accruing from congressional investigations. For they will show that the U. S. army benefited through getting later model planes, also that the U. S. treasury received extra revenue.

For instance, the British are paying the Curtiss Aircraft company a total of $739,000 in order to make over its dies and switch production from the P40 to the P46, a much more modern type of pursuit plane. Of this $739,000, about $200,000 will go to pay for the switching of U. S. army planes from the P40 to the P46.

The U. S. army was building the P40, then considered the latest and best type of pursuit plane. But after contracts for these had been signed with the Curtiss company, the P46 was developed, with a speed of nearly 400 miles an hour, it outdates the P40.

The British came along about this time and wanted to buy the P46, and the war department gave consent, provided that the British would pay for making new dies, to replace the P40's which the army already had under contract with the Curtiss company.

Thus the army gets a later and more up-to-date plane, instead of being saddled with the old P40's—all at British expense.

BRITISH APPEAL

However, this was not worked out without some argument. At first Arthur Purvis, head of the British purchasing mission, objected vigorously when threatened to carry the matter to the White House. Assistant War Secretary Johnson, however, stood pat. So first Purvis appealed to Secretary Morgenthau, in charge of U. S. government sales to the Allies, and generally considered the Allies' best friend. Morgenthau, however, took the precaution of calling up Johnson.

"How much do you figure it will cost the British and French to make over all these dies?" Morgenthau asked. He was referring to changing the machinery in airplane factories other than Curtiss, namely Douglas, Martin, Lockheed, etc.

"About $7,000,000," replied Colonel Johnson. "I'll back you up."

So after talking with Morgenthau, Purvis did not appeal to the White House.

NOTHING DOING

Vice President Jack Garner will have nothing to do with the man who assailed him as a "whiskey drinking labor-baiting evil old man." Recently a senator friendly to John L. Lewis asked Garner if he would see the CIO chief. No reason was given for the request and Garner didn't inquire. He was merely told that Lewis would like to talk to him.

"My door is always open," Garner said. "If he wants to see me I won't stop him. But I can tell you frankly I have no desire to have any dealings with him."

Note—Michigan Republicans are saying that during Lewis' recent visit to the state he told party leaders he was prepared to support GOP congressional candidates in return for pledges that they will "lay off" the National Labor Relations board.

STOCK EXCHANGE COUP

It isn't being advertised, but the Wall Street Old Guard has just written "finish" to former SEC Chairman William Douglas' clean-up of the New York Stock exchange. The banker insiders are again in complete control of the "big board."

On April 5, The Washington Merry-Go-Round revealed that the powerful banking elements, dislodged from their long-held key offices following the Richard Whitney scandal, were quietly setting the stage for a "blitz" comeback.

By adroit behind-the-scenes maneuvering over some eighteen months, they had slowly but steadily axed the reform officials installed under Douglas' blueprinting until only one remained—Edward Bartlett, chairman of the board of governors. A partner of E. A. Pierce & Co., a largest commission broker in the country, Bartlett deals chiefly with the public and is more public-minded than the Old Guard bankers. His election was a big triumph for Douglas.

But with the board again in their grip, the Old Guard whetted its knives for Bartlett's scalp. They got it in true coup d'etat fashion. Bartlett's term expires shortly, and it was expected that he would be vigorously opposed in an open election fight, with the Old Guards putting up one or more rival candidates. But apparently they feared a showdown. They harpooned Bartlett "in a smoke-filled room" before he even had a chance to roll up his sleeves.

The exchange nominating committee, made up of Old Guards and sitting behind locked doors, blanketed Bartlett out of the race by simply not putting his name up for re-election.

They nominated only one candidate for the office, Charles B. Harding, member of the investment banking firm of Smith, Barney & Co., and that was that. Bartlett was counted out without even a chance to make a fight, and the Old Guard once again was back in the stock exchange saddle.

Note—Immediately after the coup, William McC. Martin, young president of the exchange elected during the Douglas reform period, sailed for South America on an extended vacation. Inside Wall Street word is that Martin will soon be replaced with an old guard.

NO BATTLESHIPS

The fact that the Nazis do not intend to venture into the Atlantic to engage the British fleet is clearly indicated by the fact that all work has been stopped on the construction of Germany's four big battleships. These were to have been 35,000- and 42,000-ton monsters, the equal of anything on the high seas.

But since September, the vessels have been covered with canvas, and Germany has been concentrating on the construction of submarines and mosquito-torpedo boats. The latter are deadly at close range, indicating that the Nazis plan to use them against the British fleet during close engagements around the mouth of the Baltic.

commission has ruled that a professional ball-player is unemployed out of season, and the state requires a baseball club to build up a reserve fund—held and administered by the state to provide unemployment benefits. Wisconsin already has paid Joe Just, reserve catcher for the Milwaukee American association club, $86.25 in benefits, and the attorney general has approved the application of Johnny Hill, the Brewers' third baseman, whose home is in Douglasville, Georgia.

If a Georgia third baseman on a Wisconsin team should be supported in the winter by Wisconsin taxpayers, why, Keltner must have argued, shouldn't a Wisconsin third baseman on an Ohio ball club be taken care of by Ohio taxpayers?

It seems, too, that two players on the Columbus American association team had beaten Keltner to the Ohio unemployment compensation office and also had the doors slammed in their faces.

What is Michigan going to do about the sad case of Joe Louis who doesn't find work more than four or five times a year, winner and summer?—Saturday Evening Post.

A Bystander In Washington

BY JACK STINNETT

Washington—Headwinds that forced the westbound Atlantic Clipper into Bermuda recently blew the top off a leak in United States naval secrets—a leak that leads to Nazi Germany.

The story has not been told. It's an official secret, confined to international circles, U. S. naval intelligence and perhaps the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

All will offer in comment only that irritating Washington cynicism: "Just say that we refuse to confirm or deny."

But here it is, from one of those newsmen's delights: "ordinarily reliable sources":

The Atlantic Clipper, winging west out of the Azores, fought headwinds that would have driven Columbus back to Spain. All that happened was an alarming depreciation of the gasoline supply—but the skipper, figuring that safety was better than sorrow, put in at Bermuda for fuel.

The British government there, ever on qui vive, called its disbanded censorship staff from basking on the beaches and riding bicycles in the warm winter sun. Within an hour or so, 1,628 pounds of mail had been taken off the clipper for censorship. More than 800 pounds of it was mail from Germany.

Among this was a letter from some Nazi somewhere that left the British censors gasping. They forwarded it by cable to the United States naval intelligence department here.

The context of that letter left no doubt in any one's mind. U. S. naval secrets were being sold through some foreign espionage agency to Germany.

Investigations were started immediately and I have it on high authority that some person or persons already have been taken into custody—but there always is that: "We do not confirm or deny."

It's An Ill Wind—

This is a phase of the censorship and mail seizure situation that has been overlooked.

Not until a man (or woman) had come under suspicion could any of our investigating espionage or subversive activities plunders the United States mail.

It's another side of the picture that critics of British big-headedness (some even have called it big-jacking) regarding the U. S. mails have ignored.

I don't say that the British (for any one else) are privileged to tap one single pipeline of foreign communications bearing an American stamp, but I can't help repeating that it is an ill wind that doesn't blow somebody something.

It's Happened Before

This is merely history repeating itself. In the World War, it was Great Britain that pointed the way to disclosure of the Zimmerman notes, which allegedly built up a pretty big case against Germany's interest in the affairs in Mexico (supposedly to distract the United States from intervention in the European war).

Again, it was Great Britain that uncovered the reported perjury of one Mr. Franz von Papen, attache of the German embassy, Mr. Von Papen, so the story goes, had negotiated for sabotage of certain U. S. industries and waterways. For years Von Papen was under indictment in the United States—undoubtedly would be under suspicion if returned today, although the indictment has been dismissed.

Both of these COULD have been the activities of British propaganda agents. SO COULD BE THE PRESENT disclosure of a leak in U. S. naval secrets to Nazi Germany.

But who's fooling who and why isn't important. What is vital to our interests is that something's up and in a big way. The British seizure of mail finally has disclosed a skunk in the woodpile and it's up to the F. B. I. naval intelligence, or somebody, to smoke him out and find out whose flag he's flying.

If Great Britain is up to one of her propaganda tricks—it's time we found out. If Nazi Germany is getting sticky fingers where U. S. naval secrets are concerned, then it's time some misguided soul went to jail.

It's all right to shush-shush these things as long as no one is sure about anything, but once the espionage die is cast, We, the Public, should have a look-in.

Editor Post-Crescent—In writing this I would like to enlighten the minds of our sportsmen in Outagamie county. Did you know that we have one of the finest conservation clubs in the state right in our vicinity, and that they are helping you to have a better hunting and fishing season? Did you know that they are appropriating marsh lands, wooded areas, planting wild rice for ducks, planting millions of fish in our nearby waters, releasing hundreds of pheasant in good hunting territories? I'll bet you never knew that. But all this is done by a small group of men who know that their work must be done to keep our hunting and fishing grounds now and then. This small group are the only red-blooded, hard-working sportsmen in the county. We do know that there are some hunters and fishermen who like to sit back and crab and beef about the way the commission is doing, and that the seasons are not long enough, or they don't open at the right time or date, never taking

PROTECTIVE CUSTODY

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—Secretary of State Fred R. Zimmerman, whose relations with Governor Heil during the last year or so can hardly be described as cordial, is today in the unusual position of being asked to run for reelection on behalf of the governor.

An administration state ticket is being planned in the capital. The governor, secretary of state, state treasurer, lieutenant governor and attorney general, would run together on the record of the Heil regime during the last two years. The governor is willing, the lieutenant governor, despite his personal inclination to give up politics, is particularly the uninteresting and unimportant job he now holds, is willing, and apparently Treasurer Smith and Attorney General John E. Martin would welcome the chance to lend their names to the enterprise.

The only man the authors of the plan can't be sure of is Zimmerman. For Zimmerman as most people know is looking longingly in the direction of something better than he now possesses in the secretary of state's office.

HABIT

Zimmerman is happy as an officeholder. He would like to stay in office the rest of his life. The question before him is the best way of managing to attain that ambition and yet take advantage of all the opportunities which offer themselves. For a while last year there was a lot of talk about Zimmerman's candidacy for governor. Undoubtedly "Zim" as the capital knows him, would like to return to the executive chair, but he has an eye on the future always.

The governor's term is for two years, and the most he could expect, even if he were elected, would be a single reelection.

The most he could expect, therefore, even if he should be able to be elected governor again, would be four more years in public office. After that, there would be little future employment for his talents.

On the other hand he hears daily the prediction of Republican dopesters that LaFollette can, and will, be beaten, this year if a strong candidate is offered by the Republicans. He examines and reexamines the vote he got in the Dewey presidential primary two weeks ago, when he led his ticket in almost every county. He knows that his vote-getting record makes him a favorite over almost every other Republican who has been seriously mentioned for senator this year.

Yet he cannot be sure of the attitude of the Republican organization toward him and his ambitions, for his party behavior is irregular. It must always be remembered that Zimmerman spent most of his political career in the harness of the LaFollette Progressives, and that he was dropped by the Republican party once before. It must be remembered that he fought his way back by sheer voting might, and that his present position of prominence is not due to party organization support as much as it is due to his remarkable ability to attract voters to his place on the ballot.

SAFE BERTH

On the other hand he sees his prospects for the future. If there ever was one in the capital, there is no reason for him to doubt that he can hold that assignment as long as the Republican party is winning in Wisconsin, and possibly after that. It is unlikely that anyone in the party will oppose him for the nomination for secretary of state, as is abundantly shown in the pressure now being brought by Hell, Goodland, and others to get him to become a candidate for reelection.

It is a position which "Zim" enjoys. The personification of the political professional, he can now be convinced that he has made his comeback, although it appeared doubtful as recently as two years ago that he could do it.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

RESPIRATORY DISEASE

In the preceding talk about coughs and wheezes we set up as the basis of the teachings and advice given in this column the dictum or dogma—and that is all you can call the old time notions about the cause of respiratory disease—that exposure to cold, dampness, wet feet, drafts, changeable weather or chilling of the body after overheating or sweating has nothing whatever to do with respiratory disease. (O. Doc Brady's belief and teaching—take it or leave it.) Further we expressed the belief that the actual cause of the respiratory troubles the old timers attribute to such exposure is excessive drying out of the indoor atmosphere by artificial heating without proper air conditioning. And then, just to reassure readers on the borderline between youth (a state of mind) and old age (another state of mind), we promise to waste a few words in this talk on the question of exposure to cold "lowering resistance" and predisposing to infection.

Frankly no one knows what "resistance" is, least of all the professional medical textbook writer who has the gall to say that this or that lowers resistance and so must be considered a contributing cause of a disease which is essentially infectious. All of the animal and human experiments which have been carried out under proper control have failed to give any appreciable evidence to support the quaint notion that exposure to cold renders one more susceptible to any respiratory infection. And that is positively all the space and time I propose to devote to the delusion. I state my second dogma or dictum and leave it to you to come along with me or flock with the old fogies, as you prefer: There is no good reason to imagine exposure to cold, wet or sudden change in any way renders one more liable to contract any disease.

The Council on Pharmacy and Chemistry of the American Medical Association holds that advertisers may claim that vitamin A "aids toward establishing resistance of the body to infection in general, though it has not been shown to be specific in prevention of colds, influenza, and other such infections." That accounts for the many "helps" in the radio announcer's spiel. It is not permissible to say the vitamin builds resistance but only that it "helps" do so. If you ask me I'll say I don't know what you're talking about anyway, so go as far as you like.

I do believe that the deficiency of nearly everybody's diet in vitamin A, vitamin B complex and vitamin D is a contributing factor of much illness, and that vitamin A deficiency has a good deal to do with the prevalence of the cri (common respiratory infections) as well as chronic sinusitis, adenoids, hypertrophied tonsils, and chronic bronchitis. Since it is the function of vitamin-A to keep the epithelium or covering of mucous membranes and skin in healthy condition any shortage of this vitamin may be responsible for weakening in the first line of defense against infection.

Force Bid Needed to Reach Slam

"The bidding:

South West North East
1 spade Pass 2 hearts Pass
3 hearts Pass 4 hearts Pass
4 spades Pass Pass Double
Pass Pass Pass

"Set—three tricks, 300 points"

Questions: 1. Should North have bid two hearts?"

2. Should South have bid three hearts? If not, what?"

3. Should South have bid four spades to keep the bidding open, hoping partner would use the Blackwood Four-No Trump if he had added strength?"

4. Should North have saved with five hearts after double? Obviously, five hearts can be made. All players play a strict Culbertson system, plus Blackwood Four-No Trump Convention. J. J. F., New York."

Answering the questions specifically:

1. North's two heart response was eminently correct.

2. South must decidedly should not have bid three hearts if he intended to go past game once this invitation was accepted by North.

3. I will discuss this question later.

4. Yes, North would have been well advised to go to five hearts after South was doubled at four spades. On the previous round North probably was right to pass to four spades on the theory that, while he disliked spades intensely, a five heart bid at this point would encourage South so much that he would surely go to a slam which, from North's point of view, was by no means desirable.

South's ultraconservative three heart bid and "tapping" four spade bid were completely typical of what one finds at thousands of bridge tables. Such sequences are horribly illogical! Let us analyze them. The three heart bid is not a force! Hence, when he makes this bid South runs the terrible risk of being "dressed short" of game if North's holding is such that he cannot respond to a mere urge. North, on the other hand, is in the highly uncomfortable position of either dropping the three heart bid and thereby losing a game, or accepting the invitation, bidding game, and then finding himself in the stratosphere.

What sense does this make? The answer is that South must not bid this way! Instead of bidding three hearts, he must select some bid which will be an absolute force, or must jump to game in hearts. A four heart bid over a two heart response is by no means a "closing bid." On the contrary, it invites North to bid again if his holding warrants. Nothing destroys a partnership factor than for one member to lull the other into a false sense of security by making a bid which can be dropped, then when it is not dropped, driving the bidding to an unlooked-for level.

My Neighbor Says—

Make "frosted" grapes for garnishing summer salads and desserts. Select firm grapes, dip them into slightly beaten egg whites, dust them with granulated sugar and then dry them on waxed paper. Use them, for example, as a filling for peach or cantaloupe halves.

Wash "wee-hable" wall papers carefully. Make a heavy soda, using warm water and a mild soap. Apply the soda to the paper with a soft cloth. Quickly remove with a soft, clean cloth. Do not let the soda remain on the paper too long—it may loosen it!

Quick-pickling young vegetables are the best and only the home garden, where they may be harvested as needed, can provide them.

Select a few flowers for fragrance. Stock, nasturtiums, sweet alyssum, mignonette and the balcony petunias will bring new charm to your summer picture.

Sprinkle a little cinnamon over the top of cooked fruit or berry sauce. Add a touch of nutmeg to sliced bananas, apple sauce or sliced peaches. Mix a dash of ginger with baked peaches, pears or cherries.

Beauty and You

A smart hat is not enough. It should be suitable to your coiffure and face as the smiling girl above knows.

It is one thing in having a knock-out spring bonnet and it's another thing to know how to wear it so it will look knock-out on you!

A wise old man, who had a great deal to write and say about the beauty of women in ages past and in the present, once stated: "No fashionable lady should take less time than twenty minutes to put on her hat!" And my dears there is a great deal in that.

Naturally we, in our busy living, cannot take twenty minutes every time we put on our hat. But we should take time. Coiffures are intricate today and hats are well-hats are complex to say the least! Haven't you rushed into a store and asked the clerk to take that lovely hat right out of the window and put it on your head? And what happened? You looked terrible even though the hat was a honey.

Hats are designed for types, just as are coiffures. So once you decide upon a becoming hair-do then go and shop for the most becoming bonnet to suit you and the hair-do. Don't go with your hair looking a mess and think, "Well, if it looks good on me now, it will look better when I have my hair set." Not so, my lassies, it may not look well at all.

How to Put On Hat

Once you have your hat (a very pretty complex hat) do learn how to put it on correctly. Most women put on their hat first and then put on their hair. That's all right if you know your hair combing will suit your hat. But if your hair has just been set, or if it is in need for a setting, you will have to be more patient. I know a very chic woman who practically combs her hair over after she has tried on her hat. She decides that a wave or curl should be lowered or tucked back and off goes the bonnet and she does it. Then after the hat is on for the last time she combs tiny tendrils to look soft and flatter across her forehead, and pins up the sides with invisible pins. Naturally the hat looks as if it were part of her coiffure and she looks so trim that eyes turn her way when she sallies forth.

Make Little Adjustments

Frequently your suit or coat needs an adjustment after you have worn it a few times, well your hat might need an adjustment too. The band which holds it on your head may need tightening. Perhaps if you shifted a feather or flower a bit more toward the front it would "do more" for your profile. Sit before your mirror and study your head with your hat on. See if a new hair style would be more becoming to it and to you, or if the hat needs a little adjustment. Once you get a hat just as you like it you will always feel smart in it. So it pays to give your hat and your face a little concentrated study!

Allow Children to Work in Field of Their Abilities

BY ANGELO PATRI

Many fathers and mothers would be spared a lot of agony if they allowed themselves to accept their children as ordinary human beings closely resembling themselves in character and ability and in potential usefulness. That is not the usual view parents take.

"My children must have a better chance than I had. They must make something of themselves." Is the almost universal demand people make of school and society. By a better chance they usually mean a better education. Now the better schooling a child gets, the better the higher education youth enjoys, the better citizens they become because of their heightened intelligence.

But this education, this heightening of intelligence will not always produce the results ambitious parents expect. They will not always result in turning out high class professional men, leaders in business and art. They often end in sending out intelligent young people who can take a job in the ordinary walks of life and do it well and enjoy doing it. That is they would do well and enjoy their work if they had not been trained to look upon anything short of leadership, headship and authority in their fields as disgraceful failure.

We ought to think about this a bit when educating children and youth. There are only a few leaders among a generation. The great host are to be useful though obscure citizens who fill jobs in every department of labor—and by labor I mean any kind of work professional or otherwise that we are called upon to do. If we could consider people who fill their places adequately, who provide for their families, rear their children in wholesome attitudes toward life, perform their duties to the state as good citizens should—if we could bring ourselves to honor them we would save ourselves and them much distress.

We make the lives of children and youth miserable by insisting that they prepare for fields in which they cannot belong. If we were willing to train them to take places in fields where they could succeed they would be healthier, happier and far more successful in youth and maturity.

"I gave my children college education. Are they to take jobs as salespeople, stenographers, telephone operators, shop-workers?" If they fit into these places, yes. Don't worry about a wasted education. Education is never wasted if it can be accepted by the young person's mind and put to use in action.

No work is beneath the worker. There is no field in human endeavor that does not need and will not gladly accept the trained intelligence and the trained intelligence finds its way to success, always. Give the children their chance, by all means. Give them all the education they can take, but allow them to work in the field of their abilities without discrediting them if those fields are not headed to the seats of the mighty. Few find those seats at all comfortable.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Dix Says There Isn't Any Such Animal as Perfect Wife

BY DOROTHY DIX

What is the perfect wife? She is the eternal masculine delusion. She is the male pipe dream. She is the superwoman that very man expects to get when he gets married. She is a myth that doesn't exist. She never grows old and grizzled-headed or loses her figure, but remains young and beautiful and glamorous through years of housework and childbearing and struggling to make one dollar do the work of five. She has neither temper or nerves, but it always sweet and smiling and amiable, no matter what happens. She is a magician, who can run a house on air; conjure good meals, clothes, shoes and stockings and school supplies out of a hat; make bills disappear by merely waving her hand over them. She buys all her frocks and hats in a bargain basement, but she looks like a million dollars when she gets them on.

She is a marvelous cook and spends most of her time concocting dainty dishes for her husband, but she never smells of the kitchen.

She is intelligent and well-educated, but she asks her husband what he thinks she thinks and looks up to him as an oracle. Just being married to her husband is all the happiness she craves, and she asks no greater division than just to sit at home of an evening listening to the baby breathe. She has no known relatives and no mother-in-law ever comes to visit; no father-in-law ever borrows money; no brother-in-law ever has to be helped out of trouble.

She is always ready to step out if her husband wants to go on a party, or to stay put if he wants to remain at home and listen to the radio. And she feels that she has had a perfectly delightful evening watching him read the daily paper.

She is a social asset. She makes friends for her husband among the right people. She is a press agent who sells her man because everybody believes that if a wife thinks her husband is good he must be. She runs the house efficiently, is a marvel of economy, rears the children, writes his letters to his mother. Sends flowers and notes of congratulation to his white lie for him and gets him out of the engagements he doesn't want to keep.

Under the circumstances, a simple wedding would be in his best interest. He would have an expensive one if he married her. There isn't any such animal.

Don't Go in Debt For Show Wedding

Dear Miss Dix—I am soon to be married. Ever since I was a very small girl I have always dreamed of having a beautiful wedding, white satin with long train, a veil and orange blossoms and so on, you know. But I am a poor girl. My family has nothing beyond the actual necessities of life and cannot afford to give me any fine clothes or entertainment. Would it be good taste for my fiancé and me just to go to the parsonage nearby and be married and then return to my home where his family and my family could wish us good luck? SALLY.

Answer:

Under the circumstances, a simple wedding would be in his best interest. He would have an expensive one if he married her. There isn't any such animal.

YOUNG LADIES SODALITY TO STAGE 'THERE GOES HENRY'

A tense moment in the play, "There Goes Henry," which Young Ladies sodality of St. Therese church will present Sunday afternoon and evening and next Wednesday night at the parish hall is shown here. Virginia Corliss, "Cinderella girl," played by Arline Bosser, is in the difficult position of having to decide whether to listen to her father, played by John Blick, or to go with her friends, Henry Adams, a role taken by Robert Crabb. Shown in the scene are, left to right, Arline Bosser who appears as Molly Prentiss, an old friend of the Adonis family; Robert Crabb as Henry Adams, the returned prodigal son; Arline Bosser as the "Cinderella girl," John Blick as John Corliss, Virginia's swindler father; and Eugene Paltzer as Ramsay Taylor, Henry's friend. University Haresfoot Club Shows Finesse in Appleton Performance of 'Serve It Hot'

BY VIOLA HELLERMANN

THE best Haresfoot show in several years was the verdict of many who saw the University of Wisconsin Haresfoot club's 1940 presentation, "Serve It Hot," Thursday night at Appleton High school.

Whether it was the directing of Carl Cass, or a better cast, or the play itself as written by William Erin and Appleton's Clark Carnes, it seemed a much more finished production than those of the last few years. The boys knew their lines, the play proceeded smoothly and even the orchestra, which in recent years made audiences wince, was good.

Probably the highlight of the program was the between scenes act put on by James McGlynn, De Pere. Dressed as a chorus girl, he sang and cried several songs in a baby-voice falsetto which almost had the audience of about 200 rolling in the aisles. His act was unscheduled and went into the program only after Director Cass had seen him give an impromptu performance.

The dancing, of course, was excellent, as it always has been under Leo Kehl's expert direction. In and came to a stop "Having a little trouble," he inquired the driver. Tomi looked into gray eyes gray eyes dancing with golden lights.

"A little trouble," she asked sweetly. "No, this octogenarian you referred to as an automobile chose this spot in which to die. I'm leaving it here and going on." Bartell was out of his car and had Tomi's arm in a tight grasp. "Get into my car, drive across and pick me up on the way back. Do you want to wreck your bank account paying a government fine?"

Tomi accepted the offer of his car only because it was a haven from the hoots of the male motorists. She saw Allen speak to the driver behind the ark. She supposed he'd have it pushed down the incline, or into the bay she didn't care which; the never wanted to see it again.

Allen's car was gentle and tractable. It was too bad its owner wasn't. He'd probably been en route to the farm to pick her up, having allowed her time to look at the ark.

man who owned it previously kept it in top condition."

When Allen again appeared on the scene he was accompanied by a state police officer. "Just watch her," he ordered the man in Tomi's hearing. "I don't mind bailing her out of jail, but if she lands in a hospital she'll have to stay. I've no influence there."

After the officer had put her through an oral and action examination, Tomi tucked her license into her bag and proceeded about town. She felt gay, absurdly happy. She, Tomi Toland, had a car and surely the car had wings, or was there some festive spirit abroad in this island city?

She stopped at the telephone office to send a pert telegram to the Tolands, another to A. J., then proceeded with her shopping. When she finally reached the bridge and the car went spinning merrily across the draw, she patted the steering wheel. "You're adorable," she confided. "I think your first owner must have been a deer. He left such a happy soothing atmosphere in here."

Tomi drew up before her new home with a flourish to find old Abe staring at her in ludicrous astonishment.

"Like it?" she asked. "Always have," he answered. "Special make, good engine, handles like a baby carriage. Once Allen let me drive it clear to San Jose."

Louisiana Frogs "Allen!" sputtered Tomi. "What has he to do with this car?"

"It's his isn't it?" queried Abe innocently. Tomi found herself patting the wheel. After all, the car couldn't help to whom it had belonged.

Abe had fires going in both the fireplaces and the kitchen stove. The walls of the house closed about Tomi like comforting arms, and across the yard yellow lights shed a diffused gleam from Bartell's house.

Tomi slept that night, because she couldn't stay awake. Valiantly she propped herself in the big bed, pillow behind her lamp on the marble-top table, pad on her knee pencil in hand.

First on the list went the reminder. "Abe to dentist for extractions. 9 A. M. Must talk to him before." A few of the questions she would ask followed. Then somehow, she slipped down a little, eyes gleamingly contemplating the cabbage roses on the wallpaper as her thoughts drifted aimlessly here and there. She had a new car. It had belonged to Bartell. Tomorrow her trunks would be here with her new clothes. Lily was planning to marry Bartell. She'd train Little Sweetheart to jump to her knee. She loved this new country.

Tomi reached for the lamp turned down the flame and snuggled into the pillow. Abe slept in a shack near the pens. The fog was no longer a thing.

"Dear Uncle Timothy," she whispered as she closed her eyes, but her last thought was of Allen Bartell.

Heavy fog still touched the windows with gray fingers when Tomi awakened. Looking out she could see only the white lip of waves and a few disconsolate seagulls huddled above the tideline.

And yet she liked it, liked the cool, damp air, the salty tang. Old Abe confronted his breakfast like a condemned man facing his last meal.

"Ain't sure steaks are worth this," he muttered when Tomi hurried him, saying she'd better talk to him while he could answer.

"About marketing," she began. "How many legs have we ready to sell?"

"You sell 'em by the head," countered Abe. "Reckon we got a thousand head. Sell 'em dressed, they bring six dollars a dozen; on the hoof, five. We'd have to sell 'em for five 'cause we ain't got an ice and packin' plant."

Quickly Tomi computed the amount. "Fine. We'll start right away."

"Where?" queried Abe. "Where have you been selling them?" asked Tomi. "Ain't," came the illuminating answer.

Tomi had one moment of despair, then she rallied. "And why? There is a demand for them, isn't there?"

"Sure is, but it's this way, Miss Tomi. Markets that use frogs' legs regular or they get them regular, so they tie up with them markets. We ain't been in a fix to deliver regular, what with changin' hands and Timothy being sick and dyn' Besides—"

"Besides what?" she urged. "Well, these here restaurant fellows, they like Louisiana frogs best."

"But why? What have the Louisiana frogs got that ours haven't?" Abe chuckled. "Don't know, unless it's a southern accent. I can't see no difference, but then I can't eat frogs' legs."

for the troops in Norway continued to arrive on schedule.

In the Narvik sector, north of which British have landed forces, the Germans reported their own land force and were tightening their hold on the ore railway between Narvik and the Swedish border.

Flato is at the entrance to Vest fjord, at the head of which lies Narvik.

The high command enlarged upon an earlier report that a British cruiser of the Glasgow class (9,100 tons) had been torpedoed north of the Shetlands.

It said that the commander of the submarine involved had returned to port and reported the cruiser was destroyed by an internal explosion immediately after a torpedo hit her.

As is the custom, Hitler's anniversary tomorrow will be celebrated on a nationwide scale, but the celebration will be subdued because of the war. Speeches broadcast throughout the country in Hitler's honor will be a major portion of the observance of the anniversary of his birth at Braunau, Austria, near the German border.

RAPS 'STUPIDITY'
Berlin — (U) — British efforts to bring about a split between Adolf Hitler and the German people is "the most stupid phase" of British war politics, Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels said tonight in a radio address on the eve of Hitler's fifty-first birthday anniversary.

Goebbels asserted that in the unity that exists between the Fuehrer and the German people lies the reich's greatest strength.

"The German people laugh at such efforts," Goebbels said.

He added that the British contention that Hitlerism is the main issue of the war is completely discounted by the German people, which realizes that the existence of the reich is at stake and that defeat now would mean a disastrous peace.

Births

A daughter was born this morning to Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Goodrich, 709 Broad street, Menasha, at St. Elizabeth hospital.

It Is Said--
As Professor Joseph Griffiths of Lawrence college was departing from Ormsby hall last Saturday night after a meeting of the Faculty club, he was detained by John H. Graff, of the Institute of Paper Chemistry.

"That's my coat you're wearing," Mr. Graff said.

"No, it happens to be mine," Mr. Griffiths said after a careful look at the garment.

"Take out the gloves," Mr. Graff said, "and you'll see it's mine."

Pulling out the gloves, Mr. Griffiths said, "I'm sorry, but they are my gloves."

After a few puzzled moments it was established that the two men have overcoats that are identical. And furthermore, gloves that are very similar.

First One Dismissed When One of Its Members Gets the Mumps

Crawfordsville, Ind., (U)—A jury for the first-degree murder trial of Thomas Allen Boys, 28, charged with raping and killing a Fountain county farm girl, was expected to be completed in circuit court today.

The body of Elizabeth DeBruicker, 11, was found near an Attica golf course last July 22, the day after she disappeared on the way home from a 4-H club meeting. Boys was a greenkeeper at the club.

Heil Endorsement Will be at Stake When Republicans Consider Primary Question

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—The most important single question will be before the Republican state convention in Green Bay on May 31 and June 1, well-informed Republicans conceded today, is a decision on a closed primary.

The Republican executive committee this week avoided a decision on that vital party issue by declaring that the delegates to the convention, expected to number almost 2,000, shall settle it on the convention floor.

The issue, boiled down to its essential, implies a decision on Republican organization support for Republican Governor Julius P. Heil. If the convention decides that Heil should be endorsed for renomination over any other potential candidates, it will probably mean that he will be opposed for the nomination, Republicans report.

Two Alternatives There are two alternatives, however. While a decision for an open primary might be interpreted as a left-handed repudiation of the leadership of the governor, the more interesting probability is that the convention may decide to endorse another candidate than Heil.

Reliable Republican informants report that Robert K. Henry of Jefferson, Coalition candidate for governor in 1938 who withdrew in Heil's favor, will be put before the convention for its endorsement. Henry, it is said, will accept an en-

Asked to Enter Race Henry the other day heard the Jefferson County Republican organization, which he recently joined after a life-time as a Democrat, ask him to enter the race for governor. At the same time he indicated that for the first time since the 1938 election, he is available for speaking dates. The two incidents fortify Republican opinion that Mr. Heil's primary concern in this summer's political efforts will be the Jefferson banker and former state treasurer.

Eager to get their campaign started early, and confident that 1940 presents the best opportunity for Wisconsin Republicans in years, Republican leaders anticipate an historic turnout at the Green Bay state rally next month.

One headquarters aide yesterday said that the Republican committee expects the convention to attract at least 5,000. Plans call for the use of the Packer stadium for a gigantic outdoors rally.

Conversely, Republicans are certain that even if he fails to win the approval of the convention in his Jefferson, Coalition candidate for campaign for reelection, Heil will make the run for a second term, Heil's favor, will be put before the convention for its endorsement. Henry, it is said, will accept an en-

Jorgensen Talks On Sport Program At Neenah School

Coach Tells Rotary Club Intramurals are Most Important

Neenah—Ole Jorgensen, Neenah high school physical education director and basketball and track coach, contends that the intramural sports activities division of the 3-phase physical education program at Neenah High school is even more important to the students than the gymnasium classes and interschool sports.

Jorgensen, who has coached several local high school championship basketball teams, made this contention in a talk at the noon meeting of the Neenah Rotary club Thursday at the Valley Inn. In his talk, Jorgensen outlined the history of physical education at Neenah High school, explained the present 3-phase program and listed some of its weaknesses.

In picturing the physical education setup at the high school, the coach said that public opinion primarily is based on a football game or a basketball contest or a tennis article in the newspaper, for few persons realize what goes on behind the scenes at the high school, and their ideas of physical education differ greatly from educators and coaches.

The high school's physical education program got underway 25 years ago, and a woman was hired then to teach it to the boys and girls in the high school as well as grade schools. The aim of the program then was to develop strong, bulging muscles, and it wasn't a popular program.

Changed in 1919
The coach said that the change in purpose occurred in 1919 when the school hired its first man. He was A. C. Denny, who is athletic director of Lawrence college. The stress was transferred from muscle building to athletics.

The effects of the World war assisted in causing a boom in the physical education program, for it was found that many men drafted to go to war were physically unfit and that the United States wasn't as healthy a nation as expected. Schools then started to build up their youths.

The first phase of the program is gymnasium classes in which students learn from the first to the twentieth grades take part in the physical education program, for it was found that many men drafted to go to war were physically unfit and that the United States wasn't as healthy a nation as expected. Schools then started to build up their youths.

The coach described the activities of this division, pointing out that it wasn't the intention of this program to accomplish a finished job but rather to expose the students to the different activities so that they may select one of more of their own choice and make use of them. The purpose is to conduct a varied program to interest the individuals so that they will be able to carry a part of it with them after they leave school.

All May Participate
All students may participate in the intramural program, and they may select the activities they particularly care for. Its purpose is recreation and at the same time provide them an opportunity to learn to do well something they can use in later life as well as an outlet for what they learned in classes and a medium of competition.

Jorgensen explained he intramural basketball program in which more than 200 boys take part, and he listed 28 other activities in the program.

The lack of facilities is the greatest weakness in the system, he said, explaining that the intramural program must be carried out entirely during the noon recess. The law requires that each boy and girl has 150 minutes of gymnasium classes a week, but because the boys and girls have to alternate in the use of the gymnasium, there are only two classes for each pupil a week. An ideal setup, he said, would be two gymnasiums.

It was found as the result of a survey that the activities students used most after leaving school were swimming, first; tennis, second, and golf, third.

"It is logical that we should teach these activities," the coach said. "Although we have an outdoor pool for summer swimming, it should have an indoor pool. As for tennis, the school's program is second to none, but we have no facilities for golf."

Roosevelt Hopes for Added Receipts and Cut in Expenditures

Washington—(AP)—President Roosevelt said Thursday congress in all probability would not grant the $460,000,000 in new taxes he has recommended, but that he hoped this sum could be made up in increased receipts from current taxes and lower expenditures next year. Discussing the federal financial outlook at a press conference, the chief executive said it also was likely that congress would appropriate for next fiscal year a couple of hundred million dollars less than his January budget requested. All appropriations are not necessarily spent in the year for which they are appropriated, he explained. Mr. Roosevelt said he was eager to see expenditures for next year a couple of hundred million dollars below appropriations. King Henry VIII, in 1533, ordered flax grown in England

Clapper Lauds G.O.P. Choice Of Stassen for Keynote Speech

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—Republicans put their best foot forward, for a change, when they selected for convention keynoter Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota and for permanent chairman Congressman Joseph Martin of Massachusetts, the minority leader of the house. They are two of my favorite Republicans. Each is perfectly fitted to the part for which he has been cast. The Republicans could have done much worse, and almost always have.

The keynoter or temporary chairman and the permanent chairman are the two most conspicuous figures in the convention and have a large part in determining the first impression made upon the public in the earlier convention sessions before the nominating fight develops.

Gov. Stassen, a young, vigorous, new figure, with a large frame and a smiling, open face, inclined toward a moderate liberal course, and immensely popular in Minnesota after a year in office, is exactly the person ality to dramatize the rejuvenation which the Republicans think they are undergoing. His grudon dinner speech last December was such a success that attention was immediately centered upon him as the prospective keynoter.

Last Saturday Governor Stassen was 33 years old and he is too young to run for president, but he is one of the governors of whom the party can be justly proud which is more than can be said for some of the other Republican governors. Operating in a state which was long held by the Farmer-Laborites and dominated by left-wing majorities, Stassen has made an adjustment on a moderate basis toward the middle of the road. He has given the impression of competence and open-mindedness which is exactly what the Republican party needs on a national basis. Inasmuch as the Republicans can return to power only with the help of votes which went to Mr. Roosevelt in 1932 and 1936, Gov. Stassen personifies the kind of leadership which the party must have this year to win. Hence his selection as convention keynoter was a perfect one.

The only question is whether the party can live up to him. He will make excellent window dressing. But it remains to be seen whether we are going to be offered the same old shopworn goods that have been on the shelves these many years after Gov. Stassen's keynote speech is over and the convention gets down to business.

Martin As Chairman Should Be Help To Party

As permanent chairman, Congressman Martin should be a help to the party. He is a competent parliamentarian and all factions have confidence in his fairness even though he is closely allied with Gov. Landon of Kansas and is regarded as not in the old guard group. They know he won't cut any corners on them.

Washington newspaper correspondents a year ago voted Martin the ablest member of the house because of his skillful leadership of the minority. He made the Republicans something more than a handful of bellowing critics and mobilized them into a compact, hard-hitting, well-disciplined group of opposition shock troops. He did it not by iron-handed tactics but by winning co-operation. Part of his success lay in his ability to co-operate with anti-administration Democrats.

Congressman Martin has a reputation as a progressive although this comes mostly from the fact that he represents a labor district and has supported such measures as the wages and hours act and social security. Generally speaking, he has, naturally, voted with the Republican minority which he led. His voting record goes down the track on many measures with the most conservative Republicans. He was against stock exchange regulation, TVA, reciprocal tariff, relief bills in 1935, 1937 and 1938, the Wagner housing act, the death sentence for utility holding companies, soil conservation, and the 1938 farm bill. But he knows his politics, and was re-elected in 1932 and 1938 when his district went to Roosevelt in landslides.

Whatever else the Philadelphia convention may do, Republicans won't have to apologize for the temporary and permanent chairmen who start it off.

May Move to Bar Chicago From Participation In Other Sports

Some observers regarded the meeting as a final step in the controversy between the athletic directors of various schools and President Robert M. Hutchins of Chicago which began when Chicago abolished intercollegiate football last winter.

They decided to hold up 1940-41 basketball schedule making until a reply explaining or retracting the statement was forthcoming from Hutchins. It was understood Hutchins had answered the directors that each had received a copy of his reply and that a vote of their reaction would be taken Sunday. Observers pointed out that plac-key-tonk, the man who pitched four one-hit games in 1915, who has the third lowest all-time earned run average in the majors and whose pitching feats put him in Cooperstown's hall of fame is 'living off the fleas.'

Fenske Will Run At Beloit Relays

Former Wisconsin Ace to Be Paced by Three Badger Runners

Beloit — Chuck Fenske, the nation's leading track star, will try for a new world's record in the three quarter mile distance at the Beloit Relays May 3, it was announced yesterday by Director Louis E. Means.

Fenske, who is out to smash every record between the three quarter mile and the mile and a half, is the peer of Americas distance runners. The University of Wisconsin star has had a brilliant indoor season, smashing the three quarter mile indoor record at the Armour Relays last month. Fenske ran the distance in 2:57.9, establishing a new world's indoor record. This will be Fenske's second appearance at the Beloit Relays. Last year he came within a hair's breath

Kimberly Nine to Hold Practice on Sunday Afternoon

Boucher, Former White Sox Hurler, May Work For Villagers

KIMBERLY — Sonny Wildenberg, catcher for last year's Fox River Valley league champions, announced that he would manage the Kimberly entry in the league this season. The new manager will call a short meeting at the clubhouse Sunday afternoon to determine what equipment is available. After the meeting a practice will be held at the ball park. The initial workout was held Wednesday but the snow storm Thursday evening stopped everything.

It is expected that practically all of last year's champions again will be out with the exception of Bill Peotter, who has found a position elsewhere and is leaving the village. The Papermaker squad also will include a number of new candidates.

Wildenberg said Thursday that Bill Boucher, a pitcher who formerly had a tryout with the White Sox, will work for the Papermakers. Boucher, who is a curve ball artist, hails from the University of Vermont. Other new additions include Pete Wildenberg, Little Chute, and Eugene Josephs, Kimberly, who hit .325 in the Land of Lakes league last year.

The new twirling addition, along with the regular pitching staff, will give the Papermakers another first class ball club. Art (Lefty) Behr is expected to report as well as Gus Vander Zanden, a relief pitcher. Then there is Artie Hofkins who, besides holding down short, can do a neat job of pitching.

Tuffy Horn again will be assigned to third base with Drek Van Dyke and J. Vander Heiden alternating at second. Swen Bowman will take care of first base, Buck LeMay will handle the big mitt, Pete Wildenberg, formerly with the Little Chute A.A.'s will probably play left field with Elmer Kobs covering right. Urban Wildenberg will play center.

Utility men will include Vern Vandehy, Henry Rooyackers and J. Gossens. With this material the Papermakers again plan on being among the high ranking in league standing.

Appleton Athletics Call Meeting Tonight

Appleton Athletics baseball team will meet at 7:30 this evening at the Tulah club on Weimar street. The group will make plans for a card party at Eagles hall on Sunday and scheduled for Sunday. The Athletics will work at Interlake park. They are entered in the Fox River Valley league this season and will open the schedule against Oshkosh. Last year the team won the city championship and the Winnebago league title. Among the new men expected on the squad are Des Schade and the Burton brothers, Cliff and Cy.

of setting a new 1000 yard mark in a special race.

Six Hockey Rangers are Hospital Patients Now

BY EDDIE BRIETZ
NEW YORK (AP)—You don't have to believe it, but old man Mose Grove says he's pitched 15 better games than opening day's fifty two-hitter. . . . Northwestern U.'s varsity golfers voted on their favorite athlete. Score: Bobby Jones 6; Walter Hagen 2. . . . When the hockey Rangers got back from the Stanley cup wars they carried a half dozen of 'em directly to the hospital and all six were operated on the following day.

Oldest fan at the big league openers was 104-year-old Charles Rieckel of Cynthia, Ky., for years an opening day regular in Redland. Appropriately enough, he had a seat in Box 104. . . . Hyde Park High of Chicago has a Chinese pitcher. Velly, flast, too. . . . The purses at Goshen's two trotting meets this summer will be larger by 25,000 yams.

Ready for the Redies
Last Sunday, while driving deep into the Cincinnati back country, Nixon Denton came across an old man trying to patch up his radio set. . . . "We got along without it during the winter," said the old gent, "but the missus says it's got to be ready for the Red games. . . . To hell with the tobacco beds."

U. W. Tracksters Oppose Hilltops

Marquette Is Undefeated In Last Nine Dual Contests

Milwaukee (AP)—Marquette and Wisconsin University track teams open their outdoor seasons in a dual meet here tomorrow, with the Badgers expected to make a better showing than they did in an earlier indoor meet won by Marquette.

The Hilltoppers took the indoor meet at Madison by a 47-23 to 38-13 margin, but Wisconsin may pick up enough strength in the added outdoor events to make a different story of it.

Marquette, although boasting no potential national champions, is undefeated in its last nine dual starts. Coach Conrad Jennings has a well-balanced squad which features Walter Shelton and Maynard Black, sprinters; Capt. Charles Beaudry and Herman Carr, quarter-milers; Len Pruski, half-mile; Ely Francis, distance runner; Bob Shurilla, Art Schwabe and George Foster, hurdlers, and a crack one-mile relay team.

Outstanding on the Wisconsin squad, coached by the veteran Tom Jones, are Ed Buxton, Western conference 880-yard champion; Ed Smith, hurdlor; Howard Schoenicke and Byron Zolin, middle distance runners; Bill Parin and Howard Knox, distance runs; Bill Williams, pole vaulter; Ken Carlson and Orv Fischer, javelin throwers; Bill Malisch and George Paskvan, weight men, and Don Timmerman and Art Harter, jumpers.

Bitsy Grant Battles Cooke at Texas Meet

Houston, Texas (AP)—Bitsy Grant, the sharpest little ball-hawker who ever slid over the River Oaks courts, faced his greatest test of the current tournament today.

Three consecutive times the dumpy Atlanta scambler has won the River Oaks title. To get with again, he had to eliminate Elwood Cooke of Portland, Ore., seeded No. 2 just ahead of Grant.

Bobby Riggs, the national champion, and Frank Guernsey, defending titlist from Rice Institute, will meet tomorrow in the other semifinal joust.

The experts who picked the Yanks and Cards may have to eat their words. . . . On their way east, the Athletics and Pirates dropped into Hermosillo, Mexico, for an exhibition. . . . El Imparcial, the newspaper, devoted its entire sports section to pictures and writeups of the teams and called them "the leading exponents of baseball" in the country. . . . Fans came from as far away as 1,000 miles to see the game. . . . This should make good reading in St. Louis where a lot of the folks won't walk across the street to see the Browns. . . . Incidentally, the Post-Dispatch doesn't think it worth while to send a man to Detroit to cover the Brown's opener.

body. Rights to the midsection put Diener down twice but just before the ball LeMay hit the deck after being tagged by Diener's famous right.

In the third Diener's lack of condition started to tell and he wilted out of the picture. Several times he went to the mat as result of wild swings and had no coordination at all. On a couple of his rushes, LeMay again stepped back and hooked Diener's body to win easily.

Truckers Have 30 At First Workout

Manager Sid Felts Must Rebuild Squad for Northern State Play

Clintonville — Manager Sid Felts got his first peek at the 1940 Clintonville F.V.D. Trucker baseball team last Sunday with close to 30 ball players on hand. With only a few familiar faces back this year it looks as though the Truckers will have to build from scratch. Another practice is planned for Sunday.

With only two veterans from last year's championship squad back besides the elongated manager, the pennant hopes of the Truckers are rather distant. The two veterans are Rolie Kersten, third baseman, and Ty Stelf, second baseman. Encouragement came when Joe Petcka and Jim Huffman decided to cast their lot with Clintonville this year. Last year they performed with the Green Bay Green Sox, Petcka taking his turn on the mound, and Huffman patrolling the outfield. Another boost for the Truckers is the signing of Carl Lehman of Tigerton who last year pitched for the Wausau Lumberjacks. Another candidate for the infield is Frosty Ferszack, athletic director at Green Bay West High school, who has had plenty of experience.

Barney Walls Hits Home Run, Brews Take Opener, 5-2

Makosky of Winners Yields 8 Hits; Keeps Them Scattered

COLUMBUS, O., (AP)—Barney Walls' home run with a mate on base touched off a four-run ninth inning rally that gave the Milwaukee Brewers a 5 to 2 victory over the Columbus Red Birds in the American association season inaugural here yesterday.

A chilled crowd of 2,464 watched the game under murky skies. Frank Makosky, Brewer right-hander, yielded eight hits but kept them well separated except in the second and eighth frames, in which Columbus scored once each.

Pete Hader held the Brewers to two hits in the first seven rounds before singles by Les Powers and Charlie English helped the Milwaukeeans to a run in the eighth. Eddie Morgan led off the Brewer ninth with a single, and then Walls smashed the ball over the left field wall. Singles by rookie Hal Peck and Tedd Gullic, a long fly and English's second hit-off relief pitcher Tom Sunkel—accounted for two more runs. Bob Garbark followed with his second safe blow, but the third Red Birds hurler, Frank Melton, halted the outburst.

Sunday should see a big turnout of aspirants and a spirited workout is scheduled. Calisthenics will open the workout and batting and infield practice will be held. By May 5 Manager Felts plans on having his team well organized and will start the season's play at Mantowoc.

The Northern State league will be operated this year with only five teams according to the present schedule, with the first home game at Clintonville on May 19 when New London invades the Trucker stronghold. Memorial day night will see the first meeting of the season between the Truckers and Seymour with the game being played here.

Cubs Defeated By Reds, 2 to 1

Gene Thompson, Cincinnati Youngster, Allows Only 5 Hits

Cincinnati (AP)—Magnificent five hit hurling by young Gene Thompson, plus successive eighth inning doubles by Rookie Mike McCormick and Billy Myers with a man on base, gave the Reds a series sweeping 2 to 1 victory over Chicago's Cubs yesterday.

The cold, damp day, better suited to football, found both Thompson and Claude Passeau in midsummer form before an overcast crowd of 1,538.

Through eight innings, not a Cub reached second base and the first 10 to face Gene went down in order. Cincinnati's scoring came with startling suddenness.

Slow footed Ernie Lombardi, first up, was hit by a pitched ball. Lee Gamble ran for him and Harry Craft sacrificed. Mike McCormick, who so far has displayed sensational fielding prowess, promptly slashed a double to right center and Myers followed with one to the scoreboard and there went the ball game.

NEW Conference Meeting Tuesday

Circuit to Consider Four Amendments to Alaska Lake Session

Neenah—Action on four proposed amendments, one of which is discontinuance of competition in basketball tournaments, is scheduled for the annual spring meeting of the Northeastern Wisconsin conference at 6 o'clock Tuesday evening at Alaska Lake, according to J. H. Holzman, Neenah High school principal and conference secretary.

Besides action on the proposed amendments, election of officers will be held, 1940-41 basketball schedule adopted, and officials assigned. The conference executive board will meet at Kewaunee High school at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The second proposed amendment will lower eligibility age for inter-scholastic competition from 20 years to 19.

The third amendment advocates conducting a conference A and B debate tournament during the second or third week in November, while the fourth amendment proposes that a student who has completed in the Wisconsin High School Forensic association or the National Forensic league may enter the A tournament only, and all other students may compete in either the A or B tournaments.

Neenah High school will be represented at the meeting by Holzman, Lawrence Blume, Clarence Breidenick, John Gundlach, Harvey Leaman, Lester Mals, Marvin Olsen, Robert Ozanne, Al Poellinger, Ivan Williams and Dan Danielson.

Green Bay Manager Has a Brother in Major Leagues

THE Wisconsin State League Bluege of the Green Bay club will be cutting some first teeth together this year, the circuit making its bow as a member of organized ball and Bluege getting his initiation into the managerial mysteries.

The brother of the famous Ossie Bluege of the Washington Sens has been in pro ball since 1928, although he dropped out early last year and played independently. Born in Chicago, both boys got their baseball baptism in Peoria, Otto starting there in 1923. He was farmed to Dubuque of the defunct Mississippi Valley league, where his great work as a shortstop was one of the reasons Dubuque copped the pennant.

Otto did not hit much that year, but he was the ranking shortstop of the circuit. He worked his way back to Peoria, where he glittered as a defensive player and in 1931, batted .293, the same figure Ossie had hit in the same city, just before he went up to the majors.

The mark proved a good one, for he advanced Squeaky to the Cincinnati Reds for his first shot at the big league competition. He was not ready, and was farmed to Columbus in the American Association. He later became the property of the Philadelphia Phils.

Otto never hit consistently well enough to rank as a big league star, but he has played some swell ball in some of the higher class minors. His last regular engagement was with Birmingham of the Southern League in 1938. He played great shortstop for the Barons, but his batting was a modest .252.

The Green Bay skipper will not be 30 years old until July 20, and there is a lot of good baseball left in him. As a playing pilot, he should be a wonderfully steady influence for a young infield, and he'll probably hold his own at the plate.

Marbles Experts Will Show at Pierce Park

The WPA marble tournament will be held starting at 10 o'clock Saturday morning at Pierce Park. Fourteen Appleton entries have been received and will be augmented by entrants from county units.

The winner of the tournament will go to the district meet at Green Bay or Oshkosh on May 25. The district winners will compete for the state title at Milwaukee.

Avoid Potato Sunburn With Deeper Planting

Deeper planting will prevent sunburn in potatoes, according to a recent study made at Michigan State college.

In trials for three successive years potatoes were planted at depths of two, four, and six inches and the yields compared. In nearly every plot, the depth of four inches produced not only more potatoes to the acre but the sunburning was reduced to a minimum. In extremely dry years, the 6-inch planting had some influence on yield.

AUCTION

Personal property will be sold at a public auction starting at 10 o'clock next Thursday morning at the Herman Frank farm five miles south of Tigerton. A. L. Schoenke, Clintonville, will conduct the sale.

Wages for Sugar Beet Workers Same as 1939

Wisconsin sugar beet growers, who expect to participate in the 1940 sugar program, are asked by Walter Katterhenry, chairman of the state AAA committee, to observe certain minimum wage rates, according to a bulletin received by County Agent J. F. Magnus.

The minimum wage rates established for 1940 are the same as in 1939. Blocking, thinning and hoeing is $1 per acre.

If, because of unusual circumstances, it is found essential to employ labor on other than a piece rate basis for operations for which only piece rates are specified, the minimum rate Katterhenry says is $1 per acre.

Washington—(AP)—The agricultural adjustment administration's 1938 farm program cost $499,532,375.44.

This amount, reported by the AAA as "virtually a complete and final statement of payments under the 1938 program," compared with approximately $400,000,000 for the 1936 program and $326,000,000 for 1937.

Payments to farmers plus national and local administrative expenses amounted to $464,832,875.44. The balance represented obligations under such phases of the farm program as regional laboratories to develop new uses for farm products, removal of agricultural surpluses, and advance payments on the 1939 program, covering grants of aid in seed, lime and fertilizer, and advance to county associations for carrying the 1939 program into effect. The latter are deductible from the 1939 payments.

Field administrative expenses accounted for $8,559,592.62 of the 1938 total, the bulk of this representing state office administrative costs. The administrative expenses in Washington were $3,485,371.59, with other offices and bureaus of the agriculture department in Washington and in the field spending $1,205,252.22.

Farm Stocks of Grain are Under 1939 Figure in State

Holdings of corn, oats and wheat by Wisconsin farmers are smaller than a year ago, but stocks of corn are about twice those shown for the 10-year average, according to a crop reporting service bulletin received by County Agent J. F. Magnus.

April 1 estimates show that Wisconsin farmers were holding nearly 15 million bushels of corn, over 2 1/2 million bushels of oats and about a half million bushels of wheat. The stocks of corn at the beginning of the month were about 2 1/2 million bushels below those of last year but almost double the average stocks for the 10 years, 1929-38.

With 513,000 bushels of wheat on farms in the state, these stocks are less than a year ago and below average. The present stocks of corn held by farmers in the state are equal to about 37 per cent of the corn for grain harvested last year.

Farmers throughout the United States are holding more corn but less oats and wheat than a year ago. The stocks this year are much larger than average for corn and somewhat above the stocks of wheat held in recent years. Oat stocks in the nation are less than average. April estimates indicate that the stocks of corn on the nation's farms are equal to about 55 per cent of the 1939 crop.

Investment in Cow Figured by Survey

Iowa Dairyman Finds It Costs $86.50 by Production Time

By the time a dairy cow reaches production age, she represents a substantial investment not only in time but in cash money spent on feed and other things, a survey made at Iowa State college shows.

The survey was made for the college by 50 Iowa dairymen.

They found that feed cost per heifer for the period from birth to 24 months of age was about $65. And they estimated that overhead costs such as labor, use of buildings and equipment, and interest on investment contributed another $21.50, bringing the total cost to about $86.50 for raising a dairy cow to production age.

Lowest feed cost reported was $51; highest was $82. The average consumption of feed per heifer was 160 pounds of milk; 2,500 pounds of skim milk; 1,800 pounds of grain mix; 2,800 pounds of alfalfa; 2,600 pounds of silage; and eight months of pasturage.

Dormant Sprays Can Prevent Attacks by Insects on Shrubs

Trees and shrubs attacked by certain insect pests and fungus diseases should be treated now with dormant sprays, E. L. Chambers, chief of the state plant industry division, advised today in a bulletin to County Agent J. F. Magnus.

To prevent serious injury to the host plant, the treatments should be given before the foliage appears. The sprays should be applied when there is no danger of their freezing before they have had time to dry.

Certain insect pests and fungi will yield only to dormant spray treatment, Chambers said, and if the infested trees or shrubs are to be saved the treatment should not be delayed. Directions for using the dormant sprays accompany the spray material, he pointed out, and should be carefully followed.

Further information on how to rid trees and shrubs of insect pests and fungus diseases will be provided by the state department of agriculture upon request, he said.

It is agreed upon between the producer and the laborer.

"Any rates so established must be approved by the state AAA committee as being equivalent to the piece rate specified for such work," he declared.

Urge Farmers to Earn AAA Checks Under '40 Program

Money Available to Those Carrying Out Soil Building Practices

To aid in the conservation and building up of soils, provision has been made in the farm program for payments to farmers who carry out certain approved soil building practices. In Outagamie county last year there was $5,557 in unearned soil building payments, according to Joseph Garvey, chairman of the county agricultural conservation committee.

Officials report that farm plans, executed up to the present time in the county, indicate that a great many are again going to fail to earn their full soil-building practice payments.

In many cases failure to earn full payment, it is said, is due to the lack of cash, needed to purchase the seed, lime or fertilizer to carry out the necessary practices.

To aid those who may lack the ready cash or who have difficulty in getting these materials on credit, officials have provided that a landlord or tenant can make an assignment of part of his AAA check for the purchase of materials such as seed, trees, lime and fertilizer.

The privilege of being eligible to make such an assignment, it is explained, is restricted to men or women who have filed intentions of participating in the 1940 program and whose record is such that the county agricultural conservation committee has every reason to expect will carry out their intentions and earn a payment.

These assignments may be made to seed, lime or fertilizer dealers who sell these materials or to banks or other lending agencies who advance money for the purchase of these materials. Only one assignment can be made by any individual farmer and must be executed in the county office of the agricultural conservation association.

Farmers who have executed farm plans for participation in the agricultural conservation program but who are unable financially to carry out the necessary soil building practices are being invited to see their AAA committeeman or call at the office of the county agent at the court house for further information on the assignment of AAA payments.

To be eligible for payments under the 1940 program, farm plans must be executed before May 1, 1940.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER
SACRIFICE CHICKEN
Congo native with a crooked stick, which is the emblem of his secret society.

In one of the secret clubs for men, each member must carry a crooked stick. This is supposed to give him special power.

Congo folk tell of gods or demons, and offer sacrifice to them. Sometimes they make images of these beings, and pray to them as to idols.

In a village of the Bushongo tribe, an elephant was killed one day. This meant that something had to be offered as a gift to the hunting idol.

The idol was made chiefly of wood, but there was grass on its head and it was partly covered with cloth. The grass was meant to show hair.

The idol was placed in the only street of the village, and a large crowd gathered around it. In the crowd were several drummers, and they pounded their log drums with might and main.

To the music of the drums, a witch doctor danced in front of the image. Then he picked up a bowl of water, stepped up to the idol, and poured the water on its ear! Another man, smoking a pipe, walked up to the image and blew smoke into its face.

The tom-toms were still beating when a skinny chicken was brought to a point near the image. The chicken was killed with a knife, and the witch doctor went into another dance.

The chicken was supposed to pay the hunting god for the success of the hunters in slaying an elephant. Such customs have been going on for hundreds of years. Christian missionaries have worked long and hard to change the beliefs of the natives, and have met success in some places, but most of Africa's people have kept their old religion.

Natives of the Belgian Congo belong to the Bantu race, and are related to the Zulus of southern Africa. All of the Bantus are classed, in a loose way, as negroes. They have dark brown or blackish skins.

Hollywood—Spent in an interesting way today on the set where MGM is filming "The Mortal Storm" based on Phyllis Bottome's best-seller about life in Nazi Germany.

I regard this picture as important, not because it's costing a great deal of money—almost all Metro pictures do that—but because it's the first sincere effort by any major studio to portray current conditions in Central Europe. Underline, if you please, the word "sincere." MGM is leaning over backward on this one to be both accurate and fair—to avoid the slightest trace of rabble-rousing sensationalism. Neither individual Germans, nor the German people as a whole, are the villains of the piece. The only villain is the political system—the philosophy and race worship cult—that holds Germany in thrall.

I think the fate of this picture will greatly influence future screen trends. For years, the so-called intelligentsia have described Hollywood for its failure to use the screen as a mirror of vital current events. Now, we're going to see whether the public will accept, or resent, entertainment based on such contemporary issues. If "The Mortal Storm" succeeds, stand by for a deluge of topical movie dramas.

Incidentally, here's an ironic side-light. Dick Rosson, the cameraman, will also act as technical director on this film's concentration camp scenes. He spent three weeks in one last year, when charged by Gestapo agents with photographing Nazi military zones.

Memories that Bless and Burn: When Hobart Bosworth, who, despite advanced age, never lacked his light scenes, took one look at an undersized pug selected as his opponent—and scornfully demanded someone of his size... When Ginger Rogers, in black wig and accidental accent, poses as a titled English tourist—and scored the social hit of the evening without a single recognition... When Janet Gaynor, quizzed by an interviewer about her stepfather's death, burst into tears and had to be sent home for the rest of the day... When Thomas Meighan, then a struggling unknown, offered Hollywood "wise-guys" one-half of his future earnings for a grub-stake—without takers.

During the recent hot spell, WB's Knute Rockne troupe was locationing near Point Mugu. I'd love to swim out to that barge," panted Ronnie Reagan, indicating a fishing tub some 500 yards off-shore. Ten bucks you can't make it," scoffed the company publicity man. "Done," snapped Ronnie. Stripping to his scanties, he plunged in and swam not only to the barge but back to shore again without rest. "Next time," he chided, "better read your own publicity. I used to be a lifeguard!"

Weaken but Put On Strong Finish

Leaders are Down From Start but Losses are Narrowed

New York.—(P)—Stocks traveled a rocky road in today's market but found the going a bit smoother just Leaders were down from the start some as much as two points or so. Extreme losses, however, were reduced or converted into minor advances in the final hour. There were one or two weak spots. Loft dropped five at one time, then retrieved part of this.

Dealings picked up occasionally and transfers for the full proceedings 1,000,000 shares.

Business news was fairly encouraging, but much confusion persisted in the Strids of European war developments. Some nervousness was revived by the action of the premier of the Netherlands in nutting that country under martial law. Steels were under pressure the greater part of the day as word came from Pittsburgh that there was no intention of withdrawing the recent price cuts. These stocks steadied at the last on indications mill operations at Birmingham and Westinghouse would be up next week. Aircraft again were subjected to profit-taking notwithstanding the latest big plane orders from the allies. They subsequently stiffened.

Bonds were uneven, with French and Italian dollar loans advancing. Commodities were mostly lower.

Wheat at Chicago was off $\frac{1}{2}$ to $\frac{1}{4}$ cents a bushel and corn up $\frac{1}{4}$ to down $\frac{1}{8}$. Cotton, in late trade was off 10 to 50 cents a bale. Foreign currencies were more active. The "free" British pound sterling slipped after being up in the morning.

Those watching the motors noted that this week's production of new cars totalled 103,725 units versus 101,940 in the preceding week and 90,280 in the like 1938 period. Observers believed April output would be around 440,000 units. On the other hand, there was the thought of a top-heavy inventory position in this industry and the possibility of big-

One economic survey said the conflict between two major forces—war and business—was tending to influence the future of security prices.

Despite pleasing home business indicators, it was added, there is still the "fear in the minds of the investor that the position of the allies may become hazardous so that we may become involved in the war." Such involvement, it was felt, might be followed by "aggravation and extreme regimentation of business."

Walter-Logan Bill Gets Big Majority Of Votes in House

Action on Measure Reflects Temper of Public Opinion—Lawrence

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—The overwhelming vote by which the house of representatives passed the Walter-Logan bill today is a measure designed to curb arbitrary use of power by government boards, commissions, and bureaus—a significant manifestation of the temper of public opinion today with respect to misuse of public authority.

More than two-thirds of the house voted for the bill—a sign that if the house gets a chance to pass the measure over a presidential veto it would become law. The senate last year without a dissenting vote passed the same measure with some minor differences from the house bill, but after it had passed, a motion to reconsider was adopted which placed the bill back on the calendar where it is today in the upper house.

The proposed legislation has been sponsored primarily by two Democrats—Representative Walter of Pennsylvania and the late Senator Logan of Kentucky, but when the vote came in the house all but two Republicans voted for it and at least 125 Democrats. This kind of a coalition in favor of "regulating the regulators," as the house judiciary committee report once described the bill, is full of meaning as to the trend of the times. It may mean that the house will also pass at this session legislation amending the Wagner labor act so as to provide a much better procedure from the standpoint of fairness.

Favored By Bar
The attack on the Walter-Logan bill revealed that some of the younger New Dealers who have influence on Capitol Hill feared that passage of the measure would restrict the hitherto free rein they have exercised. The bill is, of course, technical in its phraseology, but it was drafted by committees of the American Bar association and has the approval of that body as well as many state and city bar associations. If the lawyers of America irrespective of party contend that administrative law needs uniform procedure, the public is inclined to credit them with an objective desire to insure a fair deal for the citizen.

The outcry against the bill, namely, that it would delay boards and bureaus and cause needless litigation, is probably in part justified because anything which checks the use of arbitrary power necessarily must bring the deliberative process into play. But the New Deal boards, bureaus and commissions, with few exceptions, have gone to such extremes that only by a bill such as passed the house can consideration be forced on an issue which has been for several months sidetracked by those who want no restraint whatsoever on the use of public power by executive agencies and commissions.

Fair Procedure
Congress, of course, cannot write every detailed instruction for the use of boards, bureaus and commissions. Too often, also, the language of a statute is purposely made broad so as to allow for sensible regulations. But this same delegation of discretionary authority has been abused and congress, therefore, been compelled as a necessary first step to insist on fair procedure. Not long ago, after many years of discussion, uniform rules of civil procedure were adopted by congress for use in the federal courts. The Walter-Logan bill is a step in the direction of uniformity in the field of administrative law which has been growing in importance because of the large number of economic questions dealt with by federal regulation.

Ever since the supreme court of the United States in upholding the Wagner Labor act virtually rewrote the commerce clause of the constitution as it had been previously interpreted by the courts, the federal authority over every sort of business has virtually become complete. This means that federal agencies have enormous power they never before possessed. To insure the citizen a chance for a fair hearing, to see that every interest vitally concerned with a regulation about to be proclaimed has a hearing is the essence of Democratic government and never would have been a cause for concern had not excessive zeal and class feeling entered into the operations of government.

Responsibility
There is much to be said in favor of giving boards and commissions power to make findings based on substantial evidence, and even to conduct hearings without some of the formalities of court procedure. But when commissions and boards are filled with appointees who do not feel the same responsibility to the people as do elective officers, and when this personnel conceives itself to be the champions of special causes, it is natural that restraints will be imposed and checks insisted upon by congress in response to an aroused public opinion.

The difficulty with these various boards and commissions is that they are dominated by men who believe in the absolutism of their respective offices—they do not concede the principle of minority rights which congress had in mind when it first created bi-partisan commissions. The minority no longer is protected on any of the federal commissions by members of its own party as originally contemplated. The members are all of one economic or class viewpoint and, hence, minority rights have been ignored. The Walter-Logan bill is now before the senate where it will be interesting to see whether the friends of real Democratic processes or the defenders of administrative absolutism are going to prevail. Efforts to kill the bill in committee will be made, but the public is learning every day more and more about the significance of the issue, and it would not be surprising if senators up for reelection this year would be asked by their constituents how they voted on the Walter-Logan bill.
